A LOBBY ON THE WAY

What Shall Be Done With the Washington Tide Lands?

AND WHERE SHALL THE CAPITAL GO?

The Coming Republican Convention at Walla Walla—The Shortest Article Yet Presented—Convention Notes.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug. 11.—"The lobby has been very [illegible] of the convention thus [illegible]," I well know member this morning. "But wait until to-morrow morning," he continued, "and you will see a big crowd here from Seattle and Tacoma to work the tide land question. Most of the lobby work has been done [illegible] little to [illegible]."

"In what direction will the lobby work?" I inquired.

"They want the tide land sold. They will be here in the interest of Henry Yesler and others of Seattle, the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, the Oregon Improvement Company, the St. Paul & Tacoma Company and every other corporation or individual that has been enjoying the fruits of tide lands. These men and corporations want them sold outright so that they can buy them. Some parties have had mills and manufactories on the tide lands for many years and never paid a cent of tax to anybody. In fact, Yesler once enjoined the authorities from collecting a tax on such property on the plea that he did not own it."

"Will the lobby and its friends win?" I asked.

"It is hard to tell. Many of the members are in favor of continuing the title to the lands in the state forever and leasing them through a commission, but I hardly think there will be enough to carry that scheme through. The moneyed interest is all on the other side. This interest has made thousands of dollars out of such property and now claim that it will work a hardship unless they are allowed to purchase it."

A JOURNALIST'S VIEWS.

Walter B. Stevens, traveling correspondent of the Globe-Democrat, was here this week and looked the convention over. He had been at the North and South Dakota, Montana and Idaho conventions, and said:

"You have a finer meeting place than any of the other bodies. The South Dakota people [illegible] in a beer hall, the Montana delegates [illegible] old court house and the North Dakota people in the capital building at Bismarck. The Washington delegates will compare very favorably in looks and mental calibre with any of the others, in fact they are a fine looking set of men [illegible] the [illegible] convention [illegible] Montana, where [illegible] 40 [illegible]"

Mr. Stevens spoke of the beautiful location of the capital here. This strikes every body favorably. It would be hard to [illegible] Olympia will secure the permanent capital [illegible] Olympia for the [illegible] no doubt [illegible] with [illegible] is in [illegible] of the city.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

There is considerable complaint among republicans at the size of the convention called to meet at Walla Walla by the chairman of the territorial committee, Colonel C. G. Lyon.

"Two hundred and ninety-eight men for a state convention is entirely too large. It will simply be an unwieldy mob," said one of the delegates, "and I cannot conceive what the chairman was thinking of unless the proxy system is to be brought in, which was very properly killed at the Yakima convention in May, 1888. [illegible] Another [illegible] is that Walla Walla people [illegible] the convention [illegible] can hardly take care of such a large crowd.

"I am of the opinion that a large convention will not be [illegible] to the [illegible] of the republican party, which shows [illegible] personal [illegible] this long enough. Harmony is what is needed to win in October."

OLYMPIA NEWS ITEMS.

Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug. 11.—The board of county commissioners [illegible] session for one week [illegible] ordered that bids be received for building a bridge over the Deschutes river between Tenino and Skookumchuck river. Also the repairing of several other bridges in the county. The board made the following levy for taxes this year: Territorial 2½ mills, county 6½, school 4½, road 2, road and bridge 1, militia 2-10, relief of indigent Union soldiers 1 10, county poll $2, road poll $4.

On petition of W. B. Hannah, the plat of Central Olympia was vacated.

The treasurer's vouchers amounted to $63,908.54, of which $63,000 was for Thurston county railroad bonds refunded and cancelled.

"SUNSET," WE LOVE YOU

It's Blarney Ye're Givin' Us, But It's Very Agreeable.

WE ARE A WONDERFUL PEOPLE

At Last Those of Us Are Who Live in Washington—Equipped With Brains, Energy, Wit and Money.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Representative S. S. Cox has returned from his visit to the northwest. As he is the only statesman of prominence in town newspaper men pay considerable attention to him. He is very enthusiastic over the reception he received in the great northwest and says: "The people out there are wonderful and especially is this so of the inhabitants of Washington territory. They are," he said, "as if you had taken the cream of New York, of Washington, of Buffalo, of all the cities of the East—the brightest boys of the family—and sent them out. With plenty of wit, plenty of enterprise and their pockets full of money, they are the brightest people in the world. They have got grit and money. They have money right in their hand and know how to use it. They have $10,000,000 to rebuild Seattle, and it is at work. There is the sound of the hammer and the ring of the chisel on the stone. They are a [illegible]. Fire cannot burn those people out.

"I saw Spokane Falls in its beauty on Saturday evening. They wanted me to stay over until Monday to speak in the opera house, but I couldn't, and we regretted it. On Sunday the terrible fire broke out, but they will build it up."

He said, in speaking of the political situation out there, that he believed the Dakotas would certainly go republican. He thought that Washington territory would almost as certainly go democratic. The republicans have the [illegible] of the organization there, but they are divided among themselves, and there is danger of serious clashing among them when it comes to business.

THE BAND OF HORSE THIEVES.

Additional Particulars of Their Operations Throughout the West.

LA MOURE, South Dak., Aug. 11.—The [illegible] and other particulars have been obtained of the wholesale horse thieving which has been carried on along the Missouri river. In the first half of the year upwards of 2000 horses have been stolen from stockmen and [illegible] along the border.

[illegible] an anti-horse stealing association was organized with headquarters in this city [illegible] Mont. A detective familiar with the several brands used by the stockmen was employed, and for several weeks has been engaged in shadowing the men supposed to be the leaders of the gang engaged in stealing stock. It was discovered that the chief operators are men of large means, some of them holding responsible offices in three territories to become states.

The operations of these men are said to extend from the extreme south boundary of South Dakota through to Pierre, to Butte and Great Falls, Mont., and thence to the British line. Hundreds of these stolen animals, the brands upon which have been turned off, have been disposed of to the Canadian mounted police, and as many more disposed of in Western Montana and British Columbia to contractors engaged upon railroad work.

Information is said to have been received that the mayor of one of the largest cities in South Dakota, who is also engaged in the banking business and has a large ranch on the Missouri river, has acted as "fence" for the thieves, and furnished them with money to purchase worn-out street car horses to be used as decoys.

A number of citizens have decided to organize a vigilance committee to go north and rid the country of them.

AN OUTBREAK FEARED TO-DAY.

The Wild Huns Will Try to Prevent Other Men From Working.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 11.—Another outbreak is expected to occur at the Hecla coal mines this afternoon. The Huns held a secret meeting last night and decided to renew the fight on Monday and prevent the men at the Hecla, United and other works from going to work. The sheriff has organized a posse at [illegible] with Winchester repeating rifles and sent them to the Hecla works.

Engineer Green, who was beaten by the desperate mob [illegible] will probably die. [illegible] who had a rusty [illegible] in his shoulder will also die.

The Huns say they will not allow work to proceed at Hecla until [illegible] given them. At Monmouth there are not more than half a dozen Americans in the mob.

AN EX-CONVICT'S CRIME.

He Shoots His Wife and Mother-in-Law, The Latter Fatally.

ELDORADO, Kan., Aug. 11.—Robert Snyder, a saloonkeeper, shot his wife and mother-in-law early this morning. Snyder is an ex-convict, having served a term in the penitentiary for bank robbery. Of late he has been living separate from his family. Last night he broke into the house where his wife and her mother were living and shot the former in the breast and the latter through the stomach. The mother will [illegible] live. Mrs. Snyder will probably recover. The cause of the deed is unknown, although it is supposed that Snyder committed the deed on account of his anger at his wife's refusing to live with him.

A Fatal Jump.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Aug. 11.—H. Webb of Wilkesbarre, 31 years of age, and Herman Newmayer of the same place, aged 45, jumped from a Lehigh Valley train at [illegible] early this morning. Webb was instantly killed and Newmayer fatally hurt.

BOSTON GIRLS ARE FLY.

Very Few of Them Can Be Caught With Tacoma Chaff.

THEY CAN NOT LEAVE THE HUB

One Widow With Three Children and a Few Old Maids Are Willing to Take Desperate Chances.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—The Examiner to-night has a somewhat amusing special from Boston, from which the following is taken: "The Yankee girl has her eye on Tacoma. The wholesale offer of marriage from Mayor Wheelwright was sent to the hub an offer to relieve the town of its generous surplus of marriageable maidens to make happy the desolate homes of yearning young men of the northwestern city interested the Yankee girl immensely. She has been anxious ever since she heard the good news. The mere fact that Mayor Wheelwright has explained and said he has officially issued no appeal for wives for lonely young constituents does not disturb the girls a bit. The mayor's assurance that girls are wanted is quite enough in itself.

Reporters who have taken the trouble to ask Boston girls in stores and shops what they thought of the Tacoma offer were somewhat surprised to learn that some of them would pay no attention to it. Very many were found who would not forsake Boston for the West under any circumstances, not even to become the wife of a possible Tacoma magnate. Others thought the Tacoma boys a pretty poor lot when they had to go a begging for girls. Still others thought that the Westerners were making fun at the maidens of Beantown.

A few of the interviews secured by the Examiner and telegraphed to that paper are as follows:

Lizzie Ryan, employed at Jordan & Marsh's big store, said: "Now wouldn't a girl be a big fool to say right out in print that she would go to Tacoma or anywhere else, to marry a man if they would pay her fare? Let a man send his money to Boston to be called for. There are plenty of girls who would like to have a chance to go. I'll bet Tacoma will be flooded with girls in less than no time."

Miss Smith, employed at L. P. Hollender's, said: "It's a good chance for all old maids like me."

Mrs. B. Furrer, employed at Davis & Co.'s, said: "I would like to go if anybody would take my three children."

Miss Flossie Cameron, employed at Perkins's, said: "Boston is good enough for me. I never had any trouble in getting all the fellows I wanted here."

Mary Conway: "Oh Lord, yes! anything but this eternal work, having to attend 'hen parties.' The sight of an unmarried man who is willing to change his condition would actually be a relief, even if one had to go to Washington territory to seek him."

Miss Sears, employed at L. P. Hollenders, said jokingly: "I will write and ask Pa what he thinks of the idea."

Miss Brown, employed at Hollender's: "I think that we really ought to take pity on the poor fellows out there."

Minnie Manning, waitress in a Beach street restaurant, said: "I would rather wait on table in Boston than take chances of getting married in a country I know nothing at all about."

Miss Warren, a brunette employed at H. Pecknell & Co.'s, said: "I don't like the West, and I don't believe there are any more men there than here that want to marry just for the sake of marrying and who will take any one who will have them."

Hannah Carey, a blue-eyed damsel who was standing at the door of French's employment office, when questioned said: "If they want wives why don't they come and court them instead of sending for them?"

Miss Sturgis, cashier at the Adams house, said: "I would not marry the best man living in Tacoma or any other place."

RETURN OF THE RIFLEMEN.

The Captain of the Team Talks About Their Victories.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The steamer City of Chicago, which arrived yesterday from Queenstown, England, brought home the Massachusetts volunteer militia rifle team, whose victories over the English are a matter of no small pride to American riflemen.

Major Frost, financial editor of the Boston Globe, who is captain and organizer of the team, said: "Our trip has been an unqualified success. I think we have learned much that will be of advantage to us. Some of the best marksmen in England shot against us on familiar ranges, while our men still felt the roll of the ship and had to aim at the target dancing about in the most grotesque fashion. Still we won by a score of 1068 to 1025. Of individual records, Lieutenant Bumstead got 100 out of 105, the biggest score made in England. Sergeant Doyle and Colonel Huddleston scored 97, and Major Henman 98. I attribute our success in large part to the fact that our men all knew each other intimately, and had confidence in each other's ability to do first-class shooting under all circumstances."

THE CHINESE DRAMA A FAILURE.

One of Its Backers Now Turning His Attention to Pugilism.

NEW YORK, August 11.—The Chinese Theatrical company has come to financial grief. For the first week they did fairly well, but after that they were deserted even by their Celestial friends and they couldn't paper the house with even New York hoodlums. Tom Lee, an Americanized Chinaman, is very much out of sorts, for he backed the enterprise to win. One of the managers, noticing the interest which a certain class of people take in prize-fights, is trying to recoup his losses by getting up what he says shall be a first-class mill between a couple of blood-thirsty celestials.

A BOY'S PERILOUS LEAP.

Eighty Feet Into the Ohio River, Escaping Unhurt.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11.—Otto Siegler, a boy 15 years old, let himself drop from the suspension bridge a distance of eighty feet into the Ohio river at 9 o'clock to-night for the amusement of his companions. The thing was done so quietly that an hour later the watchman on the bridge had not heard of it. The boy escaped unhurt.

Killed by Lightning.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Aug. 11.—At Piper City, Ford county, to-day, a woman and her daughter were struck and instantly killed by lightning. Not noticing the approaching storm, Mrs. Premen, her eldest daughter and baby went out riding. The storm overtook them while they were returning home, and a bolt of lightning descended, killing Mrs. Premen and her daughter. The baby, which was lying in its mother's lap, escaped without injury.

SUNDAY AT SPOKANE.

To-Day the Work of Rebuilding Begins in Earnest.

WHAT THE BANKERS HAVE TO SAY

An Encouraging List of Men Who Will Rebuild—Losses of the Secret Societies—Extract From a Sermon.

SPOKANE FALLS, W. T., Aug. 11.—The work of blowing down walls and clearing away the debris was continued to-day and building will commence in earnest to-morrow. The list of new buildings to be erected at once is rapidly increasing. The capitalists seem to have been encouraged by the determined spirit displayed by the business men in ordering goods and opening in whatever quarters they could find or get into, and they seem to have no hesitancy in putting their capital into new and magnificent structures to replace those now in ruins.

It can be safely said that the Frankfurt, Tull, postoffice, Cannon, Browne, Hyde, Eagle, Washington, Falls City, Union, Jameson, Ziegler and Ide blocks will be replaced, and in more magnificent and modern style. Besides these a large number of other new blocks which were in course of erection, including the Granite, Tidbolt, Nicholls, Brooks and Burch, Lamona and Opera house blocks, all of which were planned for high and beautiful structures, will be put up as fast as possible.

A great many more are considering the matter of building, but have not fully decided upon what kind of structure they propose to erect. The Northern Pacific will put in some handsome buildings to replace the old ones.

The different architects in the city have been kept busy the past few days drawing up plans and each following day adds to their labors. One of the architects has been receiving orders for plans at the rate of three or four a day, while the others are getting about all they can handle.

A few of those contemplating building are somewhat afraid of the granite which they seem to regard as not the best material, but the architects and builders are doing their best to persuade them that no better building stone can be found than the granite we have here, and they strongly urge that it be used, and used extensively. They explain that limestone, which is used largely in Eastern cities, heated as the stone in the building here was, would crumble when water is applied.

A good many are taking their old walls down very carefully, and are preserving the brick, which will make a great saving.

There seems to be little doubt now that building material will be plentiful. It is generally conceded by all that the burnt district will be soon rebuilt, and that by the 1st of January a wonderful change will be wrought in the city.

The best evidence that Spokane Falls will soon rise from the ashes and assume her former position, only on a grander scale, is the fact that property owners within the burnt district have already commenced to figure upon new buildings. A large number have already decided upon the structures they will erect, and when questioned with reference to the character of their proposed structures, they say: "We will build much higher and better buildings." The only thing that can possibly deter the progress of building will be the lack of material, and it is hardly thought that there will be any trouble from this source, since the Northern Pacific company have signified their intention and willingness to assist the city in the way of transporting building material. The city is fortunately supplied with an excellent quality of building stone and lumber, which can be furnished in abundance.

WHAT THE BANKERS SAY.

Business Has Been More Active Than It Was Before the Fire.

A reporter yesterday made the rounds of those re-established and obtained the following information regarding the business during the week.

Citizens' National Bank: Business has improved since the fire. Deposits have increased, and the general run of business is about the same as before. Expect to remove in about two weeks to quarters better fitted with vaults, etc., and business can be transacted until the bank returns to permanent quarters.

Spokane National Bank: Business has been fine this week. Ours has been very active, and fully if not more active than before the fire. This may be accounted for by the large amount of settling up of business done generally. We opened promptly at 9 o'clock on Monday morning without having lost an hour's business, and were fully prepared to meet our customers and help our friends. Even on Monday last our deposits were as $5 to every dollar taken out, and they have been increasing constantly every day. We opened in a new place while the old building was still burning, having just before the fire removed everything from the vault, and placed it in a big trunk, strongly guarded. Before the ruins of the old building were cold we bought the ground at $1000 a foot, where we will erect a handsome and suitable structure as soon as possible. To-day we have let the contract for a one story brick building at Front and Howard that we shall use as temporary quarters until we get into the permanent building. The temporary building will be 25x40 feet and furnished with a good fire-proof vault.

Exchange National Bank: Business is about as good as before the fire. We got out of it very well, the principal losses being in stationery. No change has been shown one way or the other during the week, the usual course of business characterizing the operations of the bank since reopening.

First National bank: The depositors have increased greatly since the fire and there has also been a considerable increase in the general volume of business. On the whole business has been exceedingly satisfactory to the bank. Everything came out of the vaults intact, and if not for the slight confusion attending removal, and the rather cramped quarters, we would never know that there had been a fire so far as business is concerned. We have contracted for a one story brick building 60x100 feet on the northeast corner of Riverside and Stevens streets, which we expect to occupy in about thirty days and which will serve us throughout the winter or until we complete our new building. The temporary structure will be occupied also by the Traders' National Bank, the Spokane Savings Bank, by A. Newberry & Co., in the real estate and insurance business, by the Western Union Telegraph company, the telephone company, the Edison Electric, American District and cab companies, and by the American Express company—a good sized business colony. The rooms of the First National and Traders' National banks will be 30x40 feet each and will be provided with first-class fire-proof vaults. The First National lost its office furniture only in the fire, and that was fully insured. The permanent building will be on the northwest corner of Howard and Riverside, the old stand. It will be an exceedingly handsome structure, five or six stories high, and will be thoroughly fitted for its intended use.

The Spokane Savings bank reports no perceptible difference in their business of last week from that of ordinary times.

The bank of Spokane Falls reports a larger amount of business than usual, especially in deposits. This includes many new depositors, some of whom are new men in the city, and other people who never were depositors before, who now realize the security offered by depositing in banks. "This afternoon as we close our deposits are much larger than they were a week ago. Our losses in stationery supplies amounted to but $400 or $500, but we saved enough to go on with for the present. Money will be plenty after the insurance companies pay their losses, which will amount to about $2,000,000, when it will be closer. We have had already several insurance losses deposited. We will at once commence on our new building on the old site, where we will build forward to the front. We expect to go into the new building in about sixty days."

Browne's National Bank: Business has been very satisfactory during the week, the deposits largely exceeding the amount drawn out. Capital is coming into town and we have several new depositors from the East who have come here to invest. Not the slightest alarm has been shown nor have there even been inquiries by depositors in regard to money. We opened on Monday, only three hours later than the usual time of opening, and resumed business at once. We expect to occupy the temporary building in about ten days, near the corner of Post and Riverside, which will serve our purpose until we get into our permanent quarters.

Traders' National Bank: Deposits since our opening Wednesday morning have been larger than ever before. This can be accounted for partly by the disposition of business men to deposit moneys that they have generally carried in their safes, or [illegible], and also by the fact that money is coming into the city. The fire will have no effect on the banks whatever. We expect to move into temporary quarters in about thirty days.

EXTRACT FROM A SERMON.

The People Need Meat and Money, and Grit and Force.

SPOKANE FALLS, Aug. 11.—Rev. A. G. [illegible], pastor of the M. E. church, spoke to-day on "The Situation" from a practical standpoint. In answer to the idea advanced by some narrow minded people that the conflagration was a judgment visited upon the city for its wickedness, he said: "God is not an incendiary. If all the blasphemies ever uttered in all the saloons of Spokane Falls could be condensed into one sentence, it would not be as blasphemous as the idea that God fired this city. I do not believe in such special providence. No miraculous interposition started or could have averted this fire. If there are such things as miracles, they do not operate outside of natural laws. If we have an incompetent man at the pumps, and on that obtain a flow of water no more forcible than that from a squirt gun to quench a flaming city, it is God's will that the city should burn. If we are well prepared to meet a conflagration, it will probably be God's will that the city should not burn. We should now let two prayers ascend—one to the cities of the East for meat and money to rebuild our city and the other to God for grit and force to help ourselves out of this disaster."

SECRET SOCIETIES, ETC.

They Were Nearly All Burned Out and Suffered Serious Losses.

All fraternities, benevolent and class associations and organizations were losers in the late fire. This was owing to the location of nearly all their halls in the business part of the city. German societies and others located south of the railroad escaped. The halls were located almost in a cluster, and occupied part of the upper floors, generally of prominent blocks, such as Glover's hall, southeast corner of Front and Main streets, Keats hall, southwest corner of Howard and Riverside, Wolverton's hall, over the Traders' National bank, corner of Mill street and Riverside avenue. Wolverton hall was occupied by three Masonic organizations, and Reno Post, G. A. R.

Spokane lodge, No. 34, A. F. & M., lost almost its entire property, which included nearly all the furniture, worth $3500, nearly new, its paraphernalia, records, etc. The only property saved was the charter and a few papers which had been removed to the room of the worthy master, W. A. Witherspoon. The property was insured for $500.

The Royal Arch Masons' chapter lost everything, including its records, jewels, robes and all the paraphernalia of the chapter. It would be difficult to estimate at all correctly the money value of its loss, a portion of the regalia, etc., owned by members, it being kept by them at their own homes. No insurance.

The Knights Templar also lost everything and were not insured.

A mysterious express envelope containing $40 reached Captain Witherspoon a day or two ago, which contained not a word of explanation, and was addressed merely to "The master or masters of Masonic lodges, Spokane Falls," and bearing the name on the outside of "J. J. Burnet, the Dalles lodge." The contents will be used for the benefit of the three Masonic organizations.

Reno Post No. 47, G. A. R., met in the same hall, and also lost everything. Its property was fortunately insured for $300 in the Home Insurance Company of Seattle, and the loss was promptly paid within an hour after the claim was presented.

Samaritan Lodge No. 52, I. O. O. F., which met in Odd Fellows hall, corner of Riverside avenue and Bernard, lost everything pertaining to the lodge, including books, records, paraphernalia, etc. The loss is estimated at $400, upon which there was no insurance.

Spokane lodge No. 17, I. O. O. F., owned the furniture of the hall. It also lost everything. The loss is estimated at $1500, partially insured.

[illegible] No. 6 met in the same hall and also lost everything, no insurance.

A. O. U. W., No. 60, meeting in the same hall, also lost everything, including seals and records. The loss of the records is especially severe, because of the [illegible] of the workings of the order. Not insured.

The Knights of Pythias met in the same hall and also lost everything, records included, not insured.

The Carpenters' Union lost everything, no insurance.

The Woman's Relief Association also lost everything.

Sedgwick Post of the G. A. R. was the lessee of Glover's hall and owned the furniture. It lost everything, including the charter, and there was no insurance. The post can continue working until the arrival of a new charter.

The Typographical Union also met in this hall, and lost some papers; the charter, seal and a quantity of papers were saved by members, who anticipated the danger and removed them to a place of safety. It is not yet known how much or how little has been lost.

The Independent Order of Good Templars lost everything, no insurance.

The Sons of Veterans also met in this hall and lost everything, no insurance.

FIRE NOTES.

A Generous Contribution—Another Man Missing, Etc.

W. O. Nettleton to-day received a letter from his uncle, William Nettleton, of St. Paul, Minn., enclosing a check for $250 to be used for the relief of the citizens who have suffered from the conflagration. He says: "Tell them not to be discouraged, but up and at 'em, and in three years they will have a better city than ever."

William Kohlhauff received a very friendly letter yesterday from Louis Schwarzchild, of the firm of Fergenbaum & Co., Tacoma, expressing deep sorrow on account of the great misfortune that has befallen the city of Spokane Falls, and inquiring if he can be of any service.

A. Seymour, who roomed in the Tull block previous to the fire, had bought a meal ticket at the Levarne house on the Friday before. He was at breakfast Sunday morning, but since that time nothing has been seen of him, and grave fears are entertained concerning him. Mr. Seymour was formerly connected with the fire department in Helena. He may possibly have left on the east bound train immediately after the fire.

Two horses belonging to C. R. Burns were stolen from the O. K. livery stable last night. Two watchmen were on duty, but did not discover the loss until 5 o'clock this morning.

ROYALTY AND ITS SCIONS.

The Prince of Wales Becoming Infirm—Movements of Crowned Heads.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—There is a great deal of gossip afloat now about the growing infirmities of the Prince of Wales. His son, Albert Victor, took his father's place on the field the day of the sham battle at Aldershot in the full uniform of his regiment, and made a contrast that the spectators could not help drawing between the manly young emperor and the effeminate prince, who now seems no further off from the British throne than Prince William was from the German throne five years ago, hardly flattering to "collars and cuffs."

THE AUSTRIAN EMPEROR.

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—Emperor Francis Joseph will depart for Berlin on Monday night. He will be accompanied by Count Kalnoky. Archduke Francis will join him at Prague. At Pirnaz the emperor will pay a brief visit to the king of Saxony. The party will reach Berlin at 5 P. M. on Tuesday.

HONORS FOR BATTENBERG.

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—Prince Alexander of Battenberg has been appointed to the command of an Austrian regiment in Styria.

THE SHAH'S MOVEMENTS.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The Shah left Paris to-day for Baden.

CABLE NOTES.

Leave Your Revolvers Home.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Americans coming across here would do well to leave their revolvers at home. J. W. Smith, of Los Angeles, who crossed with his father and brother, both of whom are manufacturers of rugs in New York, was arrested last Thursday, searched and taken to court and fined £5 and costs for having a pistol and forty five rounds of ball cartridges on his person. The police say Smith would not have been molested if he had not denied having a pistol when asked.

Reforms Demanded.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Dacoitan commission, which is treating with Riza Pasha, governor of the island, demands a reduction of taxation, financial autonomy, reform of the law courts and distribution of public offices among Christians and Moslems according to their respective members.

New Fort Works.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 11.—The porte, in view of the Russian movements on the Armenian frontier, will expedite new fort works at Erzeroum. A host of men are already constructing redoubts. The Russians are organizing corps of irregular cavalry throughout the Caucasus.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 11.—The Congo state will ask the Belgian government for an annual subsidy of £60,000 for ten years, to insure the continuance of the whole Congo railway. The capital for the railway has been secured.

Russian Influence Against Milan.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—A report is current that the Russian government is pressing the regents of Servia to expel ex-King Milan from that country.

Funeral of an Italian Statesman.

NAPLES, Aug. 11.—The funeral of the late statesman, Benedetto Cairoli, took place here to-day with great pomp.

THE LONELY SUMMER HOTELS.

Cold and Rainy Weather Has Kept the People at Home.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The present season has been disastrous to the summer hotel-keepers, for the weather has been disagreeably rainy. The newspapers describe this and that place as full of people. The landlords only wish they were. At Coney Island harvests are gathered on Saturdays and Sundays, but during July not half the days were warm enough to attract crowds. The others were rainy and disagreeable, entailing heavy losses on the venturesome bonifaces, who had laid in large supplies of perishables.

A hotelkeeper, who was discussing the situation the other day, said: "California is the only place where a man ought to run a summer hotel. Why? Because it doesn't rain there in summer. You can lay in your supplies and need not expect any postponement on account of the weather."

DISASTROUS COLLISION.

A Number of Trainmen Killed and Severely Injured.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 11.—The Caldwell express on the Rock Island road collided with a freight train this evening, on a curve two miles west of the city. The baggage and express cars of the passenger train, many freight cars and both engines were wrecked. Expressman Coulter was crushed to death. Fireman Pat Donovan was fatally injured, and Lew Ball, brakeman, had one leg cut off and was otherwise injured. None of the passengers were injured.

AN AWFUL CRIME.

Three Women Criminally Assaulted and Then Murdered.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 11.—A widow named Gillis, with two daughters nearly grown, living in a remote part of the county, was found by neighbors Friday, all three dead. They had evidently been criminally assaulted and murdered. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the deed.

BEECHAM'S PILLS cure bilious and nervous ills.

THE ELIXIR OF LIFE

Experiments by Credulous San Francisco Physicians.

A NONSENSICAL PROCEEDING

An Attempt to Rejuvenate a Superannuated Laborer—The Results Gravely Noted and Commented Upon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—An experiment was made in this city last evening by Drs. McNutt, Anderson and Sundburg for the purpose of testing the merits of Dr. Brown-Sequard's alleged discovery of an elixir of life. James Gamble, a man 70 years of age, was selected as a subject upon whom the test was to be made. Gamble has been a laborer up to a year or two ago, when he became too feeble to perform any hard work. During the Frazer river gold excitement he went to the mines, but only got as far as Puget sound, where he remained for several years.

A perfectly healthy lamb was secured. The animal was placed on the college operating table, and with a few incisions Dr. McNutt laid bare the gland that was to be used in the experiment.

The formula of Dr. Brown-Sequard calls for three different substances, and Dr. McNutt first opened a small vein to secure a few drops of venous blood. Two portions of it were carefully cut out and placed in a saucer. Blood was added and then a few drops of water, and when they were well stirred together, they were placed in a stone mortar and macerated with a pestle.

When the mass was prepared it was carefully strained through paper into a glass graduate to a liquid, which they again strained through paper. About three times its bulk of water was added and then it was strained once more to preclude the possibility of any tissue appearing in the liquid used for injection.

The liquid was then placed in a hypodermic syringe and an injection made into each of the patient's arms. The pulse that before injection had recorded 76, now counted 72.

Some time was taken in making a test of the temperature, and when it was ended Dr. McNutt said: "It is 94. That is a marked rise in an old man."

Ten minutes later another test of temperature recorded 97¾. "A permanent rise of 6.8," said Dr. McNutt, "is worthy of note." Gamble said that he could not note any particular change after the experiment, though he said he seemed to feel as if he had more energy.

"We cannot expect anything from the first injection," said Dr. McNutt, "nor do we know sufficient of the patient to form data for record yet, but we will make a careful note of his nervous and muscular forces and record the results after future injections. All I am prepared to say now is that taking the reports of Dr. Brown, regarded as correct, then he has probably found a powerful nervous stimulant."

Dr. Anderson said: "It will take careful tests to determine any change in the nervous and muscular forces of the patient. We must have exact data to go upon before attempting to arrive at any decision. No doubt the injection will act as a strong stimulant."

SAN FRANCISCO PULPITS.

A Concise Review of the Sermons Delivered Yesterday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—A large congregation assembled in the First Congregational church this evening to hear Dr. Barrows preach upon "Issues of the Future." The three most important issues were given as the Southern question, liquor, and the necessity of carrying religious thought into daily secular life.

Dr. Harcourt, pastor of the Howard street M. E. church, delivered his fourth lecture on "The great conspiracy against our American school system." The speaker said: "Our greatest danger now lies in our large cities where the majority of the people are foreigners. Educate these in American schools, and the nation is safe."

Rev. J. A. Cruzan and G. W. Izer are both taking a needed rest out of the city at present.

Rev. Arthur Mitchell, secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, preached in Calvary Presbyterian church this evening. Dr. Mitchell is en route to China, Japan and Siam, to visit different mission stations in these countries.

At the First Baptist church the pastor, Rev. William N. Kincaid, preached this morning on the "Shining Path," and in the evening, on "Making a shipwreck of one's self."

At the Young Men's Christian Association hall this afternoon addresses were made by Rev. J. Cassie Brand and Mr. Alex Caldwell, Scotch evangelist.

The thirty-sixth anniversary of the Sunday school took up the time of the morning service at the First Unitarian church to-day.

Dr. Beers, of Trinity Episcopal church, officiated at St. Luke's church this morning.

SPORTING NOTES.

What Is Being Done in Various Lines at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—There has been but little change in the relative standing of the baseball clubs in the pennant race during the past week. San Francisco, by losing two out of three games, holds the lead with a somewhat reduced percentage, while Oakland now holds second place by but one game over the Stocktons. The Sacramentos still hold a mortgage on the target with a somewhat greater margin than a week ago.

The dull spell in the sporting world is thought to be past, and the next few months promise to be full of interest for enthusiasts in all pastimes. The ring in the regular clubs still holds a prominent place on account of matches between noted pugilists.

The season has practically passed without anything remarkable having been done by yachtsmen, either here or in the East.

In a few weeks the shotgun will awake the echoes in the woods, and the hunting season will be fairly commenced.

A shooting festival is being arranged for local marksmen, and the Olympic Club is working to renew interest in amateur athletics by furnishing its members with a long delayed attraction, a properly arranged outdoor place for exercise.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS.

Tough Characters Would Better Keep Away From Truckee.

TRUCKEE, Cal., Aug. 11.—A man named Fagan was taken to the passenger train at 11 o'clock to-night by vigilantes. He was covered with tar and feathers. Five men were notified to leave last night and all obeyed except Fagan, who boasted that no set of men could run him out of town.

He was arrested this afternoon and lodged in jail. At 10 o'clock to-night the locks were broken off the door by 100 masked men. Fagan was taken out and tarred and feathered. A committee of the "601" went to his room, got his trunk and valise, checked them to Sacramento, gave him a ticket to the state capital and guarded the train until it left. Fagan claims to be a pugilist and is said to have served two terms in state prison. At one time a rope was around his neck and over a limb and nearly half the committee strongly urged hanging.

SEATTLE, W. T., Aug. 11.—Last night a dispatch was sent out from Tacoma stating that work had been suspended on the Puget Sound and Gray's harbor railway, the Montesano line, and that a thousand workmen had been discharged and were on the way to Seattle and Tacoma, pillaging the country.

The Port Blakeley Mill Company denies the report and says trains will be running from the Sound to Gray's harbor on or before October 10. Four hundred and forty two men and sixty teams are employed.

Two of his victims are Mrs. Comer and Mrs. Liebig, lodging house keepers, who entrusted money to him for the purchase of furniture. Campbell, his partner, loses $800. Northway spent the money on faro and women.

JEFFERSON'S TREE.

The Old Landmark to Which the Third President Tied His Horse.

Washington Critic.

Did you ever see Jefferson's tree in any of your strolls down the avenue near the capitol? Of course every one knows the tradition of how the third president rode to his inauguration on horseback, and, reaching Tiber creek, he found it too muddy to ford, for the bridge had for some reason been removed or swept away. So he tied his horse to a tree on the bank and walked across the little footway that had been temporarily erected. Few have seen this tree, though nearly every one in the city has passed beneath its spreading boughs.

It stands close to the fence, just inside of the Botanical gardens, and its branches extend over into the street. It is a stunted old affair, not much to look at as a thing of beauty, but it goes as a relic. Mr. Smith makes a sort of pet of the thing. He says it is over 200 years old, the patriarch of the Washington tree world. It is the father of hundreds of trees scattered over the city, and its children do not consider themselves above their neighbors because the Father of Democracy happened to tie his horse to one of the branches of their parent a few moments before he was made president.

HYDE PARK NO LONGER DRY.

The Saloons Have Fixed It With the Authorities.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The 5000 people in Hyde Park, recently annexed to Chicago, were, for the first time in a long period of time, treated to open saloons on Sunday. The state law closing saloons on Sunday is a dead letter in Chicago and Hyde Park keepers have succeeded, after much maneuvering, in reaching an understanding with the authorities, whereby the statute will hereafter be nullified in Hyde Park. Every saloon in the big district was in full blast to-day, the signal for opening having been an official order that all bar rooms should, in accordance with a city ordinance, keep the curtains down on Sundays. The regulation in regard to curtains was religiously enforced by the police.

Oriental rug dealer—"I assure you, madam, that this is a genuine prayer rug. It is 150 years old, and was used in a mosque for many years." Mrs. Tinselbrade (indignantly)—"Do I look like a person who buys second hand articles, sir? If you've got any new rugs with plenty of red in 'em, you may show 'em to me."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Scene—First Dinner to the Family Physician by Young Married Couple.

FAMILY PHYSICIAN—Do you know, there seems to be a natural flavor about this food that is most appetizing? What method do you use in cooking it?

LADY OF THE HOUSE—Well, Doctor, when I was at home, my mother would have no other than a Charter Oak Stove. From my earliest recollection I remembered how she would praise it, and her cooking was superb. So when we were married I insisted on having the same kind of stove. Of course the improvements made on them since mother bought hers, are most wonderful. Ours has all the latest, including the Wire Gauze Oven Doors. I don't understand the process exactly, but they tell me that all meats cooked in ovens with these doors, retain their juices and flavors to a much greater degree than by any other means. Can you explain the theory, Charles?

CHARLES (the Husband)—I can't remember all that was told me, but I know the Doctor can give a most clear and scientific statement of the reasons. Can you not, Doctor?

DOCTOR—Well, it is hardly professional to ask such information from a doctor; in fact, I am inclined to think he would not be helping his practice much by saying anything in favor of the Charter Oak Stoves. But as I have one in my kitchen, and know something about it, I think I can enlighten you. Of course it would take quite a long lecture to explain everything to you scientifically, and we have not time for that. Count Rumford, an American, who was knighted in Europe for his scientific attainments, pointed out, nearly a hundred years ago, that baking and roasting meats in air tight ovens was wrong, and he proved it by actual experiments. He asserted that it was as essential to health that our food should be cooked in pure, fresh air as that we should breathe pure, fresh air, and that air-tight ovens render the air impure, and the food cooked therein became tainted and unhealthy. But how to properly ventilate the oven was not discovered for many years after Count Rumford's time. The difficulty was to allow fresh air to enter the oven uniformly without cooling it perceptibly, and this has been accomplished by Mr. Filley's invention of the Wire Gauze Oven Door. The air enters the oven through the wire gauze in the form of very fine jets, and as there is a large surface of gauze the air is diffused and heated without forming air currents to cool the oven. Cooking might be called a chemical decomposition with the aid of heat, but oxygen is as necessary as the heat, and this is furnished by the air. Again, the meat roasted in a tight oven loses a large part of its most nutritious juices, which become dried out. Ventilating the oven prevents this waste, and the meat is cooked perfectly in the same way as broiling over a charcoal fire or roasting in the old fashioned spit of our grandfather's time. Fresh air or the oxygen furnished by the air also improves the baking of bread, making it much lighter and more easily digested. Bread baked in a Charter Oak Stove with Wire Gauze Oven Doors will never mould, and that is very strong proof that the bread is pure and healthy.

CHARLES—Thank you, doctor. I think we understand the reason much better now.

Manganese Bronze Being Extensively Used for Steamboat Propellers.

Authority on Board of a Steamboat an Interesting Study—The Pilot Schooner Turned Over to the O R & N. Co.

The escape of the Calliope from Apia, harbor when all the other men-of war were either sunk or beached, has been attributed by some experts in England to the fact that her propeller was made of manganese bronze The matter is referred to not merely for the sake of demonstrating the advantage which it is thought the Calliope derived from the character of her propeller but also to show that a screw of this description really offers a substantial gain in the matter of speed The Calliope made her way against the storm at the rate of one-half knot per hour which represented the difference between what her engines were capable of doing when forced to their maximum and the power of the storm and it very rarely happens that an extra half knot is all that there is between safety and destruction, says a writer in the Philadelphia Telegraph. Yet this half knot is not to be despised at any time, for weather or fou , par culn ly should the voyage be long one. The extra speed is accepted and the saving it could should it ot be required is by no means inconsiderable

The [illegible] screw blades of several steamers plying between [illegible] and the west coast of South America were exchanged for others of manganese bronze and although the gain in one instance [illegible] quarter of a knot per hour the effect was seen in the saving of between [illegible] tons per day in the coal account In two ships running to Australia in which a change of propellers was made from steel to manganese bronze of exactly the same surface and pitch the speed was increased almost a knot an hour Eight ships of the White Star line have propellers of manganese bronze as well as the City of New York and the City of Paris and two of the Cunarders Other large companies have adopted the same material, and have been rewarded by increased speed and coal economy

Outside the circle of the mercantile marine there are numerous instances in the British navy where a saving in the weight of the propeller of 20 to 25 per cent is claimed. The French have also adopted the same metal for some of their fastest vessels, notably the Forbin of nineteen and three-quarters knots, one of the fastest cruisers in the world. These examples have likewise been followed by Russia in some of her fast vessels

A peculiar kind of manganese bronze is used for this purpose, which possesses great strength and toughness said to be about equal to that of the best cast steel, and as compared with gun metal, of which propellers used to be quite generally made, it possesses twice the strength so that a great reduction can be made in the thickness of the blades, which therefore become finer and sharper There is also a peculiar smoothness of surface, which results in a lessened skin friction a very important consideration where high rates of speed are to be maintained, and the competition for first place among the ocean greyhounds is as keen and active as at present Manganese bronze castings are claimed to be smoother and less liable to warp than cast steel Freedom from pitting and corrosion preserves the blades for a long time in their original form so that the life of the propeller will be fully equal to that of the vessel This metal is considerably more expensive than steel and, weight for weight it is about a quarter more expensive than gun metal but the saving in weight over the latter and the fact of the pitting which steel is subjected to from the action of salt water makes a very strong argument in favor of manganese bronze

AUTHORITY ON A STEAMBOAT

Authority on board of a steamboat is an interesting study It runs on a sliding scale, but unlike the gamut it only slides one way This is bad for lower C on the steamboat but he has to stand it A good illustration of how the thing works was given yesterday afternoon just above Madison street bridge, says the Chicago Tribune

The captain of a steamer was trying to make a landing at the dock but the operation was attended with some difficulty A line from the bow had been run out and made fast to a post but the vessel's stern was swinging off into the stream The skipper with a scowl on his brow stood on the bridge abaft the wheel house and stared at the first mate, who was [illegible] around on the hurricane roof amidships Down below on the quarter deck the second mate was helping the third mate and a deck hand to take the turns out of the stern line which was snarled up on deck instead of being fast on the dock

"Mr Olsen" said the captain in a gentle manly tone of voice to the first mate "why in thunder don't you get that line out you long, lean knock kneed tar tainted wreck for returning reason? Don't you see we're swinging off?"

"Aye, aye sir," Mr Olsen replied, respectfully touching his cap to the skipper

Then Mr Olsen leaned far over the rail and raising his voice he called the second mate's attention to a matter of great importance

"Mr Peterson" he yelled "wh t's t'ing you, you tow headed block eyed lubber? Do you want to choke the stream? Get a move on you and be quick about it"

"Aye, aye sir" was Mr Peterson's response to this delicate attention received from his superior He then gave the third mate some instructions

"Swanson" he gently but firmly remarked "I'll crack your looming skull if you don't hump yourself you gun eyed bowl[illegible] stock fish feeder! Be rn [illegible] and there lively, now and get that line out!"

"Aye, aye sir," said Swanson in a humble voice

Then Swanson gave the deck hand who gets $12 a month a [illegible] out on the side of the head, which knocked him down Then he jumped on him with both feet and shouted "Why in —— don't you pay out that stern line, you low lived white livered mule eared, hog backed slab-sided, bench legged feeble minded mongrel brute! What are we paying you for?" And he finished on the poor man with a kick in the ribs

The deck hand ran the line out and made the boat fast Then he went down in the hold where he anointed his person and clubbed him elf with a handspike

THE PILOT SCHOONER.

The state pilot schooner Governor Moody has been turned over to the O R & N Co, by the state board of pilot commissioners says the Astorian and docks at the O R & N Co's wharf this morning for provisioning and fitting out

She goes to sea this afternoon or to morrow morning Rumor has it that Pilots Doig, Wood and Johnson go on her but this is not confirmed The probability is that all the O R & N bar pilots will take turn and turn about going sometimes on the tug and sometimes on the schooner as the exigencies of the case may require

THE NEW BAR TUG

The new bar tug being constructed by the Willamette Ship Building Company is fast nearing completion Her engines have been lined up and her propeller is in place She will be considerably larger than the old Donald and much [illegible]

The cargo of the [illegible] Lillie E Starbuck is coming out in excellent condition It is mostly general merchandise consigned to Portland firms She has at present in her hold about 3,000 tons but in less than a week all but the railroad iron will have been removed

The Canadian Pacific steamer Danube had a very light cargo on her last trip She only brought about 100 tons and had to take on water for ballast

The steamer Columbia sailed hence at 12 o'clock last night for San Francisco carrying a good cargo and quite a healthy list of passengers The Oregon is due early this evening

EXHIBITION OF DRAWINGS.

The Pupils of That Department of the Turn Verein Close the Term With an Entertainment

The entertainment given by the pupils of the drawing department of the Portland Turn Verein at Turner hall yesterday evening, was a very pleasant affair The work of the pupils was exhibited along the two side walls of the room, and made a creditable showing All the drawings are free hand from objects and from nature

The [illegible] on either side of the room was fringed with red and blue bunting, making a striking contrast with the white paper and black drawings The drawings were arranged according to classes

The pupils in the first class range in age from 12 to 16 years and some of their work would do credit to a professional artist Some of the best work in this class is that of [illegible] (trees and landscape sketches), Max Tuerck (animal studies) and Alfred Stein Rosa Neimeier and Selma Stein

In the second class the pupils are from 10 to 11 and 12 years of age Their work consists entirely of drawings from objects, such as cones, cubes, pyramids dumb bells, Indian clubs, and other gymnastic apparatuses Fred Martin, William Powers, Charlie Hegele and Charles Aschenroth may be mentioned amongst more proficient pupils of this class

The third class contains all the smaller and inexperienced pupils their ages ranging from 8 to 10 years. All of the work in this class is taken from charts and copy books All of the members of this class show good work for beginners, that of Melanie Stein especially being worthy of mention In addition to the general display, each pupil had four drawings for competition Each of these drawings were made in two hours and no corrections were allowed.

Altogether considered, the display of drawings showed the pupils to be endowed with no small amount of pluck and perseverance They were painstaking in their efforts and their achievements reflect credit on the able instructor C W Leick, and his assistant, R Ruters Both instructors give their time gratis

After all had had an opportunity to inspect the drawings a musical and literary programme was rendered There were several songs by the choir a piano solo by Miss Lamar, an instrumental duet by Miss Stein, on the piano, and Mr Hoeber on the cornet a zither solo by Charles Tuerck and a few comic impersonations of character Mr. Leick gave a brief history of the work in the school, and outlined its present scope and future possibilities The entertainment closed with the awarding of prizes

The drawings will remain on exhibition in Turner hall until this evening

AT THE CASCADES

Saloon Closed Up—A Suggestion About Preventing Forest Fires

CASCADES W T August 10

Business in the wet grocery line is rather dull in this vicinity Trade not being sufficient to pay for the high license required, our only saloon has closed, and the building leased for a legislative hall

It is a trifle dull and monotonous here until recently but as the commissioners have decided to expend larger sums for the improvement of roads and bridges it will necessitate the employment of many men so even if the saloon fishery was a failure our sun of prosperity has not quite gone down in gloom although it is obscured by smoke every day

Seriously some measures should be taken to prevent the wholesale destruction of such large and valuable tracts of timber as have been and are now being destroyed by forest fires in the Cascades It is believed that in many cases railway locomotives set the fires and the company should use effective spark arresters The timber destroyed in one day in Oregon alone would pay for all the spark catchers required and throw in a few locomotives

Once the timber is burned off the land is worthless as its mountainous character precludes the possibility of cultivation and it remains a bleak and rugged tract partially covered in places with small willows and underbrush that are unfit for anything The fires are [illegible] that are kindled do not appear to be ever replaced by their own kind hence the necessity for some effective measures being taken for the prevention of such disastrous fires

AN INSANE MAN

He Imagines That Forty Men Are After Him to Hang Him

Colfax Commoner

William P Wilson a man [illegible] years of age and unmarried whose home is in the Deyton neighborhood in the Alkali flat country but who has been at work on the Cœur d'Alene branch of the O R & N railroad, was brought down from Farmington on Monday by Constable Stoops and given a hearing before the probate court on a charge of insanity He was found to be insane and was taken to the asylum at Steilacoom the same evening by Sheriff McLean and W B Spencer Wilson has been running wild over the upper country or some time and has an hallucination that a body of forty men are pursuing him to hang him He imagined for a time that he had shot and killed the foreman of his grading party and was very much mystified afterward by seeing the man alive, and fails to understand it

Ayer's Sarsaparilla never before equaled its present daily record of marvelous cures

IN THE FIELDS OF SPORT.

New York Right Behind Boston in the National League Race.

It Is Likely That These Clubs Will Have the Final Struggle to Themselves—Brooklyn Pushing St Louis

The Boston team still holds the lead in the league race but the Giants have gained a number of points on their formidable opponents with the last week and are now only five points behind them Boston now has fifty two victories out of eighty two games played, while the Giants have fifty one victories out of eighty one games played Each club has lost thirty games and Boston has won one more game than New York As the season progresses it seems to be assured that these two teams will have the final struggle to themselves

The race for the American Association pennant is just as close as that in the league with the feeling of uncertainty a little more pronounced The race for the lead between the St. Louis and Brooklyn teams is a stirring one, and either team may hold the advantage at the end of the week

The Brooklyn men are playing in excellent form and a continuation of the present work will mean the pennant at Washington park in October The St Louis team is a remarkable game and Brooklyn has not the pennant yet by any means

The Baltimore Athletic and Cincinnati players are also hitting [illegible] for the pennant, and all are capable of giving the leaders a severe struggle before a victory is gained The Brooklyns started on a long tour on August 4 and if they return home on August 30 within a few points of the lead they ought to capture the pennant easily

A threadbare story ventilated so freely last spring and published broadcast in the papers, has started on the rounds again It is Brooklyn's offer to St Louis of $[illegible] for the release of Comiskey When the offer was made it was promptly rejected by Von der Ahe and negotiations have not been opened since

Recently in Sydney, Australia, Jack Burke was introduced at a boxing match as ready to meet any man of his weight in the world To this Costello, known in San Francisco as "The Buffalo," made reply that Burke need not travel far over the world to find a man willing to meet him He (Costello) had been seeking after a match with Burke ever since the latter has been in Australia He was prepared to meet Burke in an eight round contest for the whole or any part of the gate

Jimmy Carroll wants to come to California badly and has written to the California Athletic Club offering to fight the winner of the La Blanche Dempsey fight for the middle-weight championship Dempsey meets La Blanche on August 27th for a purse of $5500 of which $5000 goes to the winner Carroll may get a match with Professor McCarthy if Reddy Gallagher does not come up to tackle the Australian —San Francisco Chronicle

The London Sportsman thus comments on the great American prize fight "Though in some measure an outcast in his behavior while in London Kilrain always had confidence in his ability to beat Sullivan, and during the progress of the fight between the latter and Mitchell in France he loudly proclaimed it Monday's proceedings, however once more place John L on the topmost rung of the ladder of fame and the opinion we expressed of his ability when in England has at last been verified That Sullivan, in less than six months from the time his life was despaired of should rise from a bed of sickness go through a course of training, and force the fighting in a tropical climate for over two hours and then lower the colors of a man who has been lauded up to the skies, is nothing short of wonderful No better [illegible] Kilrain, and while he had a good fight under these circumstances he was [illegible] hard there is no doubt that [illegible] will now have great faith [illegible] saying [illegible] from my friend Never once during the fight did he [illegible] and his wonderful [illegible] qualities were so conspicuous [illegible] that Sullivan who six months ago [illegible] knew a cross-buttock from a back heel, threw his man when and where he [illegible] The dangerous right was never brought into [illegible] and Kilrain—the [illegible] possessed of bulldog pluck and courage—had to resort to all the [illegible] in order to avoid the unexpected onslaught of his opponent Six years ago Sullivan was the acknowledged champion with the gloves and taking a line of Kilrain's abilities through his encounter with Smith the result of the contest under notice proves that under the old rules he can more than hold his own in the best of company A natural fighter of the pronounced order Sullivan considering his recent illness and the undoubted liberty he has taken with his constitution performed on Monday in a really phenomenal manner The result of the fight seemingly expresses the hollowness of Kilrain's pretensions to championship honors Let us hope that in future we shall hear less of the blatant boasting of Kilrain and his deluded friends—especially the latter The contest, too has enabled Sullivan to give the lie to his detractors and has proved the Boston boy to still be the possessor of marvelous fistic skill combined with physical powers of the first order"

POOR WHITES OF THE SOUTH.

Good Health.

Nature seems to have dealt hardly with them, for the drinking water, especially in the lowlands is very poor It is frequently obtained at a depth of only a few feet necessarily receiving considerable surface drainage The principal articles of diet are corn bread and pork The bread is usually made of Indian meal and water and is good solid material If anything in the shape of vegetation is cooked it is always completely saturated with pork fat Coffee, as black and strong as the parched berry can make it completes the menu from one year's end to another Tobacco [illegible] is a very part of their personal and [illegible] existence I have known ministers to administer baptism with snuff brushes protruding from their mouths One would suppose the medical fraternity would raise a voice of warning on some of these points but they do not On the contrary they [illegible] the use of tobacco and the use of an abundance of fat pork also The average rural practitioner is fully twenty five years behind the times Quinine and calomel are his catholicons In some places leeching and bleeding are still regarded as efficient remedies There are two very significant facts that are observable in these [illegible] First almost the entire absence in some [illegible] of old people and second the large number of children taken away [illegible] In one neighborhood we heard of a family of six adult children [illegible] We visited the farm of the family and found that a good supply of fruit trees grew on his little farm Strange to say many of the people regard fruit as unhealthful and will make little or no use of it when it grows indigenous around them

TOWERING MINERAL HILL.

The Attraction of a Great Mining Belt of the Okanogan Country.

Description of the Grover Cleveland—The Thompson—Little Giant—Mohawk—Lake View—The Sunrise and Other Mines.

Okanogan Outlook

There is probably no portion of the Okanogan country that presents more attractions to mining men than Mineral Hill This grand old hill towers to a hight of about 6000 feet its summit being nearly 3800 feet above the beautiful city of Conconully, which lies at the base of the hill on its eastern side There is a good trail from the town leading around and up to the top of the hill, from which a fine view of a large portion of the country, the Indian reservation and the Big Bend country can be had In this county can be seen lakes streams valleys and mountains and across the Columbia river may be seen the almost limitless plain for which the Big Bend country is famous To the miner these attractions are but slight in comparison to those offered by the different mines from which Mineral Hill derived its name

GROVER CLEVELAND

The first claim visited on our way up was the Grover Cleveland owned by N R McLain, of Spokane Falls and two other parties whose names we did not learn The shaft on this claim is down twenty five feet, and from the character of the ore on the dump bids fair to be a mine in the true sense of the word

THE THOMPSON

Is the next claim to which our attention is drawn There are two shafts on this mine one sixty five feet deep and the other forty-five feet deep The ledge is seven feet between walls, the pay streak averaging fourteen inches The ore is gray copper and galena, of which there is about twenty tons now on the dump The owners are E P Wheeler, J L Spath, C Beckmeyer and William McDaniels The same parties also own the Montana, Nevada and Accident The Montana has a thirty five foot shaft and shows up well Development work will be continued on this mine, the owners being fully satisfied to put money in on her The Nevada has a forty foot shaft, with good showing, and the Accident, a fraction lying between the Little Giant and Standard, looks well

Then comes the Buckhorn owned by Mr Clark, of Spokane Falls and Alf Cowherd, of this place. There has been but little work done on this claim Higher up the hill is the

LITTLE GIANT, STANDARD AND MAYFLOWER,

Joining each other and making as fine a group of mines as is seldom seen. These promising claims are owned by Tacoma parties and last season were ably managed by Mr Frank Hamilton, who had a tunnel run in the Little Giant a distance of 210 feet to tap the ledge On nearly the same level across the gulch is the

MOHAWK,

Owned by Henry Lawrence and Mr Redmond who have tunneled the mine for a distance of 110 feet and have a large amount of good ore on the dump indicating a strong ledge of high grade mineral Right on the divide, at the pass where the trail crosses, is the

FAMOUS "LA LUNA,"

Owned by Thomas L Nixon, of Tacoma. Over 200 feet of shaft and tunnel work has been done and a large amount of ore is now on the dump and in the ore house Assays from this mine have run enormously high, and from a shipment of ore the returns exceeded the expectations of its owner Work will probably be resumed on the La Luna soon Near this mine are the

MONITOR GRANITE AND MAMMOTH,

Owned by R R Hargrove and others, of Conconully All of these claims look well, and are of high grade ore The La Luna Granite and several other mines are about the same altitude as the Arlington on Ruby Hill

The mine that is at present attracting the greatest attention perhaps of any on Mineral Hill is the

LAKE VIEW

Owned by R R Hargrove and John NeColins (better known as "Sunrise Jack") This claim is at an altitude of 5000 feet and directly on the divide and almost at the summit It shows a ledge four feet between the walls which are of granite with porphyry lining The pay streak is about twelve inches at the bottom of the shaft, which has been sunk thirty feet at one end of the ore chute They are now drifting in on the pay streak from the bottom of the shaft and will tunnel under the ore chute which shows on top a [illegible] the whole of the ledge between walls was all mineral They have already about 2000 pounds sacked, besides a large amount ready for sacking, and will continue work hoping there will be a mill erected here to treat the ore this fall The twenty-five sacks of ore will easily run $500 to the sack being chloride and [illegible] sulphurets with a considerable sprinkling of horn silver This is one of the finest propositions for some company to take hold of in the county as its location character of ore and everything pertaining to it is most favorable The only bad feature about the Lake View ore is that it is almost impossible to select a specimen as all of the ore is so uniform that a haphazard choice is nearly as good as the most careful selection

THE SUNRISE

Owned by John NeColins and some Cœur d'Alene parties, was next visited Here we had dinner and if our host had been anything but a miner he would have shut us off about twenty minutes before we cried, "hold, enough!"

The Sunrise is well and favorably known, being one of the first claims located on Mineral hill, and from it Jack came to be known as "Sunrise Jack." A tunnel has been run in on the ledge about 100 feet, and from several sacks of ore shipped to Portland the mill test shows an average of 400 ounces in silver The character of the ore is chloride and brittle silver The ledge is from three to ten feet in width, mineralized all the way through and has an eighteen inch pay streak There are fully ten tons of high grade ore in the ore house

After one has visited the different mines on Mineral hill and looked at the ore piled up at the shafts and tunnels we are led to wonder why some enterprising millmen have not erected a custom mill here ere this as they would surely be reaping a rich harvest

FOREST FIRES IN CŒUR D'ALENE

The City of Murray Walled in by Flame—A Narrow Escape for the Town

Wardner News August 3

The forest fires that have been raging around us for more than a week have been greater in extent and more serious in their nature than was at first supposed by the residents of Wardner To say that our neighboring city Murray was literally walled in by flames is simply stating the fact On Saturday July 20 a fire broke out in the west fork of Trail gulch and the wind being favorable it swept rapidly over the range towards Murray, but fortunately subsiding the raging element was [illegible] in its progress about two miles from the town The new road to Myrtle was rendered impossible on account of burned bridges fallen timber and other obstructions and freight trains from Osborn were compelled to take the North Fork road to reach the county seat On Wednesday July 24 fire broke out near the mouth of Dream gulch, the alarm was sounded in Murray and the people of that town quickly responded and repaired to the burning scene The wind being light and variable the fire made but little headway until the following day when much alarm was created At the mouth of Tiger gulch about two acres had been cleared for a baseball ground on which the debris of fallen timber had been gathered and piled in heaps preparatory to burning It was fired on Wednesday night and a brisk north wind springing up on Thursday it got beyond control of the watchers and swept up Tiger gulch, sparing the bridge and cemetery fence, which were saved by strenuous efforts and went roaring up the mountain like the thunder of a mighty train In a moment the peak on the south side of Murray was capped by flames. The fire bell rang and all was excitement, the hose carts were hurried to the long bridge and a full head of water was turned on which saved both the bridge and town, the water of the California ditch was turned into the water tank and the citizens fought the dreaded foe heroically. The people of Littlefield had all they could do to save their homes but the little settlement beyond, known as Raven, was entirely destroyed Many families in Murray stored their household goods in tunnels, others made packages of all descriptions and buried them in the gravel on the Widow claim and a large number of trunks were taken to the Cunningham fire-proof building for safety

NO MERCY FOR JOHN L.

Muldoon Thinks He Will Get the Full Extent of the Law.

ROCHESTER, N Y, Aug 11 —William Muldoon John L. Sullivan's trainer for his great fight with Kilrain, has just come back from New Orleans, where he went to look after Sullivan when the champion was arrested and taken to Mississippi at the instigation of Governor Lowry He expressed the opinion that Sullivan would be given the full extent of the law, which is imprisonment for one year and a fine of $1000

KILRAIN WILL NOT ESCAPE.

PURVIS Miss, Aug 11 —In response to a question the sheriff expressed the opinion that Kilrain would surrender himself here for trial Referee Fitzpatrick Captain Jameson and Mr Rich are here It is stated that indictments will be found against Kilrain, Muldoon Cleary Johnston, Mitchell Dennis Butler the two Murphys (bottle holders) Johnston Wakely Stevenson and Barnett An officer will be sent to bring these men back for trial The special trial of those who have already waived examination and are out on bail will begin to-morrow

LOSS OF NERVE POWER.

In these modern times loss of nerve power is a very common condition We more frequently perhaps find it among professional, scientific and literary men and men actively engaged in commerce and financial speculations—the [illegible] brain workers women as well as men who live not by their muscle but by their brain Students and scholars growing boys and girls are subject to loss of nerve power and enfeebled vitality frequently the forerunner of constitutional disease

Functional disturbances of the nervous system are found among the underworked and indolent as well as the overworked as they often live in a constant round of entertainments and dissipation in an atmosphere of perpetual restless nervous excitement, which gives neither the brain nor the heart adequate repose

One of the earliest symptoms to attract the notice of the patient is weariness, which is always present a sense of tiredness never wholly relieved by repose he finds it difficult to fix his attention on any subject he is soon tired his capacity for mental work is diminished the memory fails Wakefulness at night and drowsiness during the day are very constant symptoms His sleep is restless and the morning finds him entirely unrefreshed Digestion is imperfectly accomplished, the appetite is unnatural and impaired, the heart's action is feeble and irregular The physical symptoms are characteristic of extreme debility loss of weight, thin blood, loss of color

We see how in this manner, loss of nerve power culminates in the breaking down of the general health for, although the nervous system is first affected the result is productive of a greater or less disturbance of all the bodily functions and a state of chronic invalidism is created, a state which, in men as well as in women, is constantly associated with hysteria, and is the origin of those manifold and multiform obscure nervous diseases that baffle purely medicinal treatment, which after a time subsides into alternately deadening sensibility with chloral or morphia and rousing it with stimulants. The treatment consists in the removal of the exciting cause or causes, and in the employment of all means in electricity we have such a remedy All these difficulties are overcome by Dr Darrin's electric treatment. It is a reliable agent and well worth the trial. That it is appreciated is shown by the hundreds of testimonials published in this paper for the past two years, and the half is not told, as only those who desire it have their names in print. Mr McFarlane's card speaks louder than anything we can say.

PORTLAND: MONDAY, AUG. 12.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Among the noteworthy things said by Governor Pennoyer concerning the Chee Gong case, was his remark, that while "personally opposed to capital punishment," he could not allow his private views to warp him from the execution of his official duty Of course he could not, and we could never understand why a man who was personally opposed to capital punishment, should, if otherwise competent, be challenged as a juror, for, as an honest man, he must render a verdict according to law and the facts, knowing that his business as a juror is not to try the prisoner, as he would try and punish at home his own refractory and guilty child but to render his verdict according to the law and the facts, and then leave the prisoner to the law There is no more reason why a man who does not believe in the good policy of capital punishment should not be trusted to make a good juror in a murder case than there is that Governor Pennoyer should not be trusted to leave a criminal to the law, despite his personal disapproval of the policy of capital punishment

The governor's private dislike for capital punishment is doubtless shared by a good many humane people of both sexes but this dislike is rooted rather in a disgust for the disagreeable public necessity of breaking a fellow creature's neck than it is in reason The truth is, that the foes of capital punishment have no leg to stand upon against its friends. The time was when capital punishment was inflicted for trivial offenses and frightful tortures were part of the law of the land As late as 1818 in England the death penalty was inflicted for over 200 offenses It is not one hundred years since a woman, with an infant at her breast stole a roll of cotton cloth in London and was hanged for it and her case was cited by Sir William Mountford, in his eloquent speech against the death penalty save in cases of homicide

Since 1818 the tendency the world over has been to lessen the number of capital crimes In some countries of Europe notably Switzerland, the experiment of life imprisonment has been tried with such disastrous consequences that the death penalty has been restored in most of the cantons. In England great efforts have been made to substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty, but in vain The greatest living English jurists as a rule oppose it vigorously upon the philosophic ground that of the vast mass of persons who are likely to commit murder, few would fear life imprisonment compared with the many who recoil from the gallows The humanitarians who seek to substitute life imprisonment forget, first that a life sentence is like prohibition that does not prohibit, it is not "a life sentence" in fact at all In many of our states, including Oregon, a life sentence means about ten years of prison life ending with a pardon, and, secondly these humanitarians forget that while a high bred intellectual man would dread the living death of prison life far more than death from the gallows tree the average murderer would accept any form of life rather than death He doesn't hanker after a cellular existence in a penitentiary but he infinitely prefers it to death and deposit in the narrow cell of a silent grave Shakespeare answers the plea that a life sentence is as terribly effective as deterrent to crime as death when he makes Claudio in Measure for Measure say

> The weariest and most loathed worldly life
> That age, ache, penury and imprisonment
> Can lay on nature, is a paradise
> To what we fear of death

This was placed in the mouth of a gallant high bred young gentleman who nevertheless shudders so at the prospect of death that he absolutely begs his sister to surrender her honor to his executioner and let him live If the love of life is as powerful as that with a high bred gallant like Claudio how strong must it be in a low bred cut-throat urged by no sense of honor to choose death rather than a hateful life

The argument of Shakespeare against the abolition of the death penalty as set forth in his powerful picture of the tenacity with which even high bred men cling to life has never been answered The natures that prefer death to life imprisonment are few, because as long as there is life there is hope, but death ends all hope in this world and possibly in the world to come, so death terribly repulsive to the best of us is doubly so to low bred ruffians who get as good fare and treatment in prison as they ordinarily have had out of prison The experience of both Europe and America has been discouraging to the abolition of the death penalty Maine Wisconsin and Michigan have at different times abolished the death penalty with evil results The written law is so tender now to a homicide that no man save a cold blooded murderer need fear the gallows The plea of self defense is given such generous latitude that the ablest and most influential man in Charleston S C was murdered and his murderer a disreputable doctor of no professional consequence acquitted The plea of "insanity" saves the neck of many a fiend that ought to hang, the plea of "manslaughter" is not seldom accepted for a murderer and the plea real or trumped up that the prisoner slew his victim because of domestic wrong almost invariably secures an acquittal for the accused Add to this the abuse of the prerogative of pardon or commutation and the number of murderers that reach the gallows in America, compared with the number of murders, is small very small compared with England It is noteworthy too, that in those states where it is most difficult to secure a conviction for murder homicides of all kinds are alarmingly common while in a state like New Jersey homicides are few and far between because Jersey justice is as swift sharp and inexorable as that of England

The truth is that while capital punishment is a disgusting necessity it is not a whit more disgusting than war, which is not seldom necessary for public safety and one of the dangers of woman suffrage would be that women would reason as lamely about the death penalty as about prohibition They would argue that life imprisonment was as good as the gallows forgetting that while the penitentiary is theoretically a prison for life the only real safe prison for a cut-throat is the grave There is no more sense in turning over every murderer to the penitentiary for life than there would be in hunting down every grizzly bear and turning them over for life to a state zoological garden instead of shooting them to death Italy has recently resolved to try the experiment of abolishing capital punishment which Switzerland has just abandoned The experiment of Italy will be watched with great interest.

Notwithstanding predictions to the contrary, the commissioners sent out by the government to treat with the Sioux Indians have been successful. The result will be an acquisition to the public domain of 11,000,000 acres of land well watered and timbered and of great fertility After having secured their land, however the government's responsibility to the Indian does not cease He must be cared for and brought under the influences of civilization

Joel Chandler Harris, whose quaint and humorous sketches of negro character have brought laughter to a million readers said a few days ago, alluding to the novels of the period, "That which has a grip on human nature has a grip on me" This is a terse and yet strong appeal for depicting human nature in the fiction of our times. Books like "Robert Elsmere" and "Looking Backward," that seek to teach mankind new social or religious truths, are discussed by the learned or discriminating, and either live or die with relation to the value of that which they seek to convey But "Adam Bede" "The Scarlet Letter" and "David Copperfield" take a deep root in the heart because of a strong human interest that reveals in the lives of hero or heroine something akin to our own We feel that we are living over again some of the dear or sad experiences of real life Such books do grip us in an all enfolding grasp of human nature

BRITISH TROOPS IN EGYPT

The massacre of Gordon whom the English left to die in Egypt has been avenged and some thousands of slaughtered Madhists lie dead and dying by the waters of the historic Nile The Soudanese fought with Moslem desperation but the superior force and discipline of the British regulars swept them into the jaws of death into the very mouth of hell" The plan followed by General Grenfell the leader of the English army, may have been one of stern necessity but it was little more than a scheme of organized butchery sanctioned by the unrelenting rules of war General Grenfell's tactics were of the simplest order He posted his infantry in a favorable position and then with his cavalry reconnoitered the enemy's camp making a feint of retreating and luring the desert warriors toward the main body of his army They were drawn into a slaughter pen and when escape was impossible the cavalry and infantry mounted on camels swept down upon them and beat them to earth

Great as has been the desire of England for supremacy in the affairs of Pharaoh's land yet in the false economy of troops and means great soldiers were ruthlessly butchered and encouragement given to Osman Digna and his warriors Gordon was sent to Egypt to wait for reinforcements to his insignificant body of troops alas that came not Khartoum was captured, and General Wolseley's army compelled to retreat These and other English retreats gave hope to the children of the desert, and fired with the hope of wiling the land again to Allah, they gave the English troops no rest.

In countries where the soldiers of civilization are sent to make a stand against barbarism and ignorance, the only way to prevent massacre and bloodshed is to be fully equipped and prepared against it. This the government of England had signally failed to do, and in order to prevent the infidel forces of Wad el Njumi from effecting an entrance into lower Egypt and indiscriminately murdering the Christianized population of that part of the country, it became a stern necessity to engage in a slaughter as cruel and exterminating in its way as that which it sought to prevent The battle degenerated into butchery of a horde of starving barbarians cut off from supplies and animated by the hope of victory or the grave Such triumphs of war add no lustre to the martial history of Great Britain

OREGON FRUITS

A California newspaper has an item to the effect that the fruit crop of Oregon is almost a failure this year and our state will have to depend chiefly on California orchards for its supply How such a lie could get current is not easily seen Oregon has a great abundance and even a superabundance of fruit of all kinds If apples are not a great crop there are still far more apples than can be easily marketed and we have more fruit to [illegible] and grapes the crop of 1889 will be greater in quantity and better in quality than usual and Western Oregon will establish a reputation for both more reliable than it has ever enjoyed before Peaches are especially fine As to grapes the season is yet too early for judging correctly but it is the general opinion that grapes will be excellent this year as well as abundant.

Concerning the flavor of fruits Oregon can bear comparison with any region known and come out number one Our peaches when we grow them are especially well flavored and California never can produce such fruit on her granitic soils as grow on the basaltic formation of Oregon both east and west of the Cascades

Governor Hill believes that the parent has a superior right to any that the state can assert over his children so he vetoed the compulsory education bill This is a view that will hardly hold together when the rights and duties of citizens are considered fully If the father alone controls the child and happens to be of vicious character and lacking in principle, the result will generally be that his children will grow up enemies of society and the state will have to punish them as criminals That the state as a matter of self protection has a right to educate and control all citizens seems beyond question Carry Governor Hill's theories to their legitimate conclusions and the state will be powerless to secure proper character and principle in the young In truth the state is supreme and in receiving the welfare of society cannot be second to any Governor Hill caters to the worst element of his party and does not consider the welfare of the state so much as the success of his party

---

Papers in every section of the Willamette valley note the passing of men on their way to the mountains to secure timber claims By another season the repeal of this law so far as Oregon is concerned will be a superfluous work Almost every immigrant during the past year and thousands of old settlers have enriched themselves by securing 160 acres of land under this act and in the years to come as both timber and land increases in value on account of the increased demand for homes and houses many snug sums will be realized from the sale of this same land which a few years ago no one in the state would have taken as a gift unless exempt from taxes

---

Half a dozen or more instances are reported this season of grain fields destroyed by fire which was started by sparks from a passing locomotive In view of this it would seem a mere matter of right for railroad companies to provide spark catchers for their engines If they do not do this willingly it is not at all unlikely that a law will be enacted compelling them to do so The railroad commissioners should investigate these reported cases and find out in how many instances the railroads are alone to blame

The seventh volume of the American State Reports published by the Bancroft Whitney Company San Francisco, is just out These books which have heretofore been noticed, are most excellent in the character and general scope of their contents They contain all the latest cases of general value and authority which are decided from time to time in the courts of last resort of the several states The work of selecting and annotating is under the charge of Mr A C Freeman

Our attention is called to the fact that the Washington constitutional convention has taken action upon the matter of salaries to county officers and the new constitution will provide that all such officers shall be paid certain fixed salaries and the fees of all kinds that may be collected from the people will go into the various county treasuries Washington will be a long step ahead of Oregon by this action

Two men Lewis Puckett and J S Catching disputed at Canyonville Or on Thursday last, over a trivial matter, and the former so grievously wounded the latter that next day his victim died. The murderer for several hours is left unmolested and makes deliberate preparations for flight and succeeds in making good his escape The authorities of Canyonville in allowing the murderer to escape were guilty of criminal carelessness The atrocity of the crime is heightened by the fact that the murdered man, who was well beloved among his neighbors leaves behind a wife and six children He was formerly deputy sheriff of the county

A considerable trade has sprung up between this city and Vancouver, B C and this is certain to increase especially when the proposed railway lines connecting Portland the Sound ports and British Columbia points are built Recent advices leave little doubt in the minds of our merchants that Portland will continue in the future as she has in the past to control the trade of the Pacific Northwest

STAMP MILL FOR THE BAKER MINES.—George Bock, the painter, recently gave up the business to devote his attention to the Silver Peak and Bob Ingersoll claims, located in the Cable Cove district Baker county. Mr Bock is associated with D C Pallisco, in gold mines, and came down yesterday with samples of ore which assayed $200 and $1004 per ton from the reserve claims. A five-stamp mill was constructed for—in East Portland, and will be shipped to Sumpter, Baker county, whence it will be carried into the mines Messrs Bock & Pallisco left yesterday for the mines, where they will remain until winter sets in.

BACK FROM FRANCE.—Mr Jean Droulhat the French restaurateur, is back again from his visit to his old home in the Puy de Dome, in France. He says he greatly enjoyed his trip in revisiting his boyhood play grounds. He, of course, saw the Eiffel tower and everything else about the exposition in Paris. He thinks there never was such an exposition. In his own words Mr Droulhat says, "I am very happy to have made the trip, it was one of the rewards for my many years of work, but there is no place like Oregon, and I am very glad to be back. Vive la Republique Française, mais vive la Republique Americaine."

GREAT LACK OF WATER.—Residents on lower Fifteen Mile are complaining loudly because of a lack of water for their stock says The Dalles Times Mountaineer. Mr Gilbraith says Fifteen Mile is dammed above Dufur, and this causes the community north of Mr. Absalom Bolton's farm to suffer from a water famine. Mr Gilbraith says he has to take his stock to the mountains for water and his milch cows and work horses to Eight Mile. He has lived on the creek for ten years, and has never suffered for water any single year until the present.

BELLS DISCARDED ON SUNDAYS.—The Third street horse-car line has turned over a new leaf, and may hereafter be designated as the Sunday-observance route. President Tyler Woodard, it is stated, yesterday increased the wages of men on the line 60 cents a week, and made an order that all bells be taken off the horses on Sundays. The bells are taken off, so that the cars may not disturb the religious atmosphere any more than is absolutely necessary.

SERVICES ON THE PLAZA.—The open air services on the plaza given under the auspices of the Y M C A are being largely attended. Rev David Wetzell of the Christian church preached to a congregation of nearly 400 people yesterday evening. Interest in the work is increasing and many attend these services who would not go to church. It is the intention to continue these Sunday evening services as long as the weather permits.

CLEARING HOUSE BUSINESS.—The bank clearances last week amounted to $1,818 85 37, an average of $303 146 per day, as compared with $2,540,723 63 for the preceding week—an increase of $278 451 74. The total clearances since the opening of the clearing house on July 16 to date, less than a month, have been $6 576 240 26. As soon as the wool ship and the wheat crop begin moving lively the clearances will show a large increase.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH.—The basement of St. Patrick's Catholic church on Eighteenth and S, is finished, and the stonework is under way. It will be the only Catholic stone church on the Pacific coast. It will seat 500, and will cost when completed, $75,000. Father P F Gibney who is to be the pastor of the new church says it will be opened about next St. Patrick's day. The corner-stone was laid on March 17 of this year.

REV MR. KUMMER'S NEW HOME.—The new parsonage of the Taylor street Methodist church on the southwest corner of Ninth and Salmon street is completed and Rev Alfred Kummer, the pastor has been living in it for a week. It is four stories high with a basement and is the finest methodist parsonage on the Pacific coast. It cost, with the lot $15 000.

GERMAN CARP PLENTY.—It is reported that the Willamette river in the vicinity of St John is teeming with German carp. Several boys got quite a string two or three days ago, and yesterday afternoon Deputy Sheriffs Keegan and Fitzsimmons got about twenty fine specimens weighing from half pound to a pound and a half each.

THE SPOKANE Y M C A REMEMBERED.—S W. McOaslin addressed the young men in the Y M C A parlors yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large and at the close of the exercises a collection of $25 was taken up for the benefit of the association at Spokane Falls, which suffered by the late fire.

HIS ARM SLOWLY MENDING.—Police Officer Thomas whose arm was broken in a scuffle with a crowd of drunken ruffians about two weeks ago is able to be out on the street. He still carries his arm in a sling and it will be several weeks yet before he will be able to resume his post of duty on the police force.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will announce a decision in this court this morning in the case of the W and M Manufacturing Company vs Knapp Burrell & Co on the motion for a preliminary injunction for infringement of the Glidden patent for barbed wire fence.

MULTNOMAH'S SHARE.—Multnomah county's share of the state school fund amounting to $19,643 43 has been received from the state treasury by County Treasurer H Chaney.

FOR SALE.—On account of owner leaving town, a very handsome diamond horse shoe scarf pin valued at $150. Can be seen at 149 Front street. Benj Bowman.

FOR FAR-OFF CATHAY.—The bark Colom will sail for Hong Kong in October. It is expected that she will carry 300 Chinese to the old country.

VERY LOW INDEED.—But Kohn is selling fine stiff hats at $1 50 which he says are his regular $3 hats reduced.

SUITS TO ORDER.—Kohn guarantees a fit and makes the most stylish suits to order at reasonable prices.

GET BAGGED.—Kohn has a big lot of fine bags and valises at corner Second and Morrison.

JAPANESE AERIAL EXHIBITION

A Fair Audience Witnessed This Novel Entertainment at City View Park Yesterday

The Japanese balloon exhibition given under the management of Charles A. Doyle at City View park yesterday afternoon proved to be an interesting entertainment. The exhibition consisted of balloon excursions, aerial transfigurations and other interesting features coming under the category of day fireworks.

Unfortunately there was little wind—scarcely a breeze in fact—and the balloons ascended slowly and leisurely. Japanese fireworks operated by monster bombs with slow fuses exploded at a distance of from 400 to 500 feet from the ground liberating images and figures of all kinds that inflated as they descended. There were horses fish dragons, cattle wild animals images of men and women and countless other fantastic figures, making a beautiful and artistic aerial display. The exhibition was enjoyed for its novelty. The attendance was only fair but those who were present appeared to enjoy the exhibition. The entertainment deserved a larger patronage.

A band stationed in the grand stand discoursed music at brief intervals and other features, such as running races, enlivened the occasion.

PUT OUT YOUR FIRES

A Little Care on the Part of Campers Might Prevent a Great Deal of Damage.

The recent forest fires in the vicinity of East Portland and Albina and also along the lower Columbia naturally recalls the circumstances of carelessness that result in so much damage to forests and cordwood. Referring to the liability of forest fires and the serious consequences a Union county exchange says:

"Now that the season of fishing parties and huckleberry frolics has come it may be well to warn parties who are proposing to go out "camping" regarding fires. Reports from all directions show that forest fires are raging, and the general cause is directly traceable to the carelessness shown in leaving campfires burning. It is a very easy matter to prevent a possibly disastrous fire by exercising proper precaution in putting out a fire when it is of no further use. The law is very strict in regard to leaving camp fires burning, and if it was enforced as it should be there would not be so many forest fires. A great deal of unnecessary loss could be prevented by campers making it a rule to put out their fires on leaving camp.

This same caution will apply with equal force to all outing parties in this section of country. A little care and judgment may save a great amount of valuable property.

AT THE THEATERS

That Laughable Success "A Parlor Match" at New Park—"East Lynne" at the Musee

The comedians Evans and Hoey, begin a five nights' engagement at New Park to night.

A Parlor Match" is a solid chunk of pure and wholesome fun. There is not a moment from the rise of the curtain until its final fall that there is not something occurring to create uproarious laughter either in the dialogue of the piece the situations or in the business. The play is funny because it is made up of funny things and said by funny people. Some situations never grow stale, and 'A Parlor Match' is full of these.

It is the story of a book agent who with the determination to dispose of his stock learns the weakness of the man to whom he wants to sell. His customer who is a descendant of Captain Kidd is searching for his ancestor's buried treasure. The book agent convinces him that through spiritualism he can personally converse with his forefather and thus locate the treasure. Upon this the structure of the comedy is erected, and by it all manner of ludicrous incidents are brought about. Songs and medleys are appropriately introduced—not dragged in without reason—thus affording diversion, which is the only relaxation permitted the auditors. It is not difficult to class Messrs Evans and Hoey. They are the best comedians working in this line on the stage. Mr Evans who renders the part of I McCorker esq presents a personage in eccentric character that stamps him as capable of complete mastery of any thing in that line. He is very funny and possesses a pair of the greatest comedy legs in the business.

The part of Old Hoss in the hands of Mr Hoey is a representation of the itinerant American tramp, just sufficiently emphasized to make him a central figure. He is a never-ending source of fun. His new topical song is the best that he has ever had and is always received with shouts of laughter. The Innocent Kidd of Miss Minnie French is just as good a part as either of the stars have to handle. She is graceful guileless and as the ladies would say "prodigiously cute" in the part. For a broad grin and cheery laugh, the sure specific of "A Parlor Match" is advised.

THE MUSEE-THEATER.—That familiar society drama, "East Lynne, or the Elopement" will be presented for the first time to night with Miss Essie Tittel in the role of Lady Isabel, one that will give her the best opportunity in the world to exhibit her powers of emotional acting. The company has been strengthened by the engagement of Mr G Philleo for leading business. He is said to be a competent actor in this line of parts and will have his first opportunity here in the role of Archibald Carlyle. Mr George R. Currie will essay the part of Sir Francis Levison and the remaining parts will be in good hands. In the Musee the extraordinary attraction of Madame Rosa, the bearded lady will be the great drawing card. She is a wonderful freak of nature and has every where excited the greatest curiosity. To morrow night the entire proceeds of the evening will be devoted to the Spokane relief fund.

NEW MINES DISCOVERED

Result of a Ten Days Prospecting Tour Through the Mountains

From a Baker City paper of August 8 the following is taken:

John Roth William Lren August Meyers and E Wender returned last Thursday evening from a ten days prospecting tour through the mountains about twenty miles southwest of Baker City between Burnt and Powder rivers. They discovered and located claims to seven new ledges of which they brought samples of ore into town and had it assayed with very flattering results. They applied the following names to their new discoveries: The Champion Blow Out Bald Eagle After Math Badger Bull Head and last but not least the Oregon Blade in honor of the best newspaper in Eastern Oregon. These will no doubt become valuable properties in the future. The parties will go out again to day and commence development work. Some of the rock they brought in assayed as high as $108 75 to the ton and this is only from the surface cropping. They have undoubtedly struck it rich and ere long Baker county will be able to boast of a few more valuable mines.

THE "MELANCHOLY DAYS" COMING

Strong Indications That We Shall Have an Early Fall This Year

There are strong indications that fall is not far off, notwithstanding that August is not yet half gone. For a week past the nights have been quite cool and pleasant while the mornings are real chilly. There is that nameless indescribable feeling in the very atmosphere that suggests autumn.

There is a haze in the air
And the fields are brown and bare which is inseparably associated with the melancholy days. Leaves are beginning to fall and litter the sidewalks in many places. Outside the city the woods have commenced already to change color and don the russet and gold. The foliage of the maple particularly is sprinkled with deep fiery crimson while the leaves of the dogwood are tinged with bronze and purple. I've lived in Oregon nigh onto forty years and an old time webfoot remarked yesterday to a reporter, and my opinion is that we shall have an early fall this year.

What might have saved Seattle? One of Z T Wright's Lindgren Fire Engines. They can be seen at the foot of Morrison street. Every family should have one.

The market is just at the present time full of cheap but worthless pianos. It has long been the demand of the middle classes for a good piano at a moderate cost. Such an instrument has been found in the Ivers & Pond kept only by The Kohler & Chase Music House 71 Morrison of this city. Every body should call and see it.

CENTRAL and SOUTH AMERICA.

Prizes Lying at Our Doors Which Europe Gobbles Up.

Mutual Commercial Advantages Which Will Surely Follow a World's Fair in the United States in 1892.

The countries to the south of us have a population aggregating fifty million souls.

Their foreign trade in 1888 amounted to $12,000,000,000, and of this the United States received only $250,000,000.

The merchants of these countries sold us goods valued at $181,000,000, and in return we gave them $69,000,000, leaving a balance against us of $112,000,000, all of which has to be paid in gold through European bankers.

PREGNANT FACTS.

These are facts which are pregnant with interest to every thoughtful man, and if there were no other reasons for holding an international exposition in New York in 1892 the certainty of increasing the commercial intercourse between the three Americas would be sufficient necessity. The rich trade of South and Central America and the West Indies does not come to us—where by propinquity it naturally and geographically belongs—but goes away across the Atlantic and is controlled by Europe—England, Germany and France mainly.

There is such a plentiful lack of banking, cable and mail service between the United States and our southern neighbors that our merchants are at a great disadvantage, and American manufacturers actually have to go to London to transact business with the representatives of South American firms.

The New York Herald of August 5 contains numerous interviews with prominent New York merchants which contain many interesting hints and much information of the rich and partially undeveloped country in the Southern half of this continent. Several of these interviews are here reproduced.

REASONS OF SENTIMENT.

"All of Spanish America has a sentimental reason for interesting itself in an exposition held in New York," said Charles R. Flint yesterday. "Columbus first landed on Spanish-American soil and our first civilization manifested itself in what are now the Central and South American states. There will be more or less interest manifested by European countries, but it is from the three Americas that the chief exhibits will come. An exhibition which has for its primary object the celebration of an event so closely allied to the history of our Southern cousins could not fail to attract their hearty co-operation.

"They would bring to us the products of their countries, and what is more to the interests of North American manufacturers, they would be given an opportunity to see what we can do in the way of making machinery, etc. They have a great idea of our inventive faculties, and while they may be able to buy heavy iron manufactures in Europe cheaper than they can get them here, perhaps, they are willing to buy of us because of the superior quality of our products.

SOME OF OUR ADVANTAGES.

"In developing trade with South and Central America we have this advantage, that being a new country we have been forced to invent labor saving machines and those which are adapted to the wants of new countries. The South Americans receive from us their agricultural implements, our iron bridges, easily erected, our locomotives, adapted to sharp curves, heavy grades and rough roadways, and our machines and manufactures generally are better adapted to the wants of those new countries than the products of the old countries, which deal with the conditions of cheap labor and an older civilization.

In the Paris exposition the South American states have taken a great interest and show this by the completeness of their exhibits. I might even say that some of them exceed in variety and fullness the efforts of the manufacturers of the United States. But with an international exposition in New York these countries, from Mexico to Patagonia, would have a sentiment behind to urge them to make a special effort to appear well before us that is entirely lacking in Paris. It would be like a reunion of sisters gathered, each to exhibit to the best advantage her growing and natural charms.

"The international congress called to meet in Washington in October will, I think, have a great influence toward exciting interest in the proposed international exposition here. The delegates from Brazil, the Argentine Republic and the Central American states will undoubtedly support the resolutions which will be introduced indorsing the plan. This action on their part will be of great help to the movement and will give it an official indorsement such as cannot be disregarded at home. The fact that this congress is to be held at this time I regard as especially fortunate. The influence that the delegates will wield on their return home cannot be calculated.

RESULTS THAT WOULD FOLLOW.

"I cannot undertake to estimate the value of the business result that would ensue from the bringing of the people of South and Central America to the fair. Let me give you some figures that show how we now stand with them regarding the balance of trade. In 1888 we bought from our southern neighbor $58,000,000 worth of coffee, $62,000,000 worth of sugar, $10,000,000 of timber, $12,000,000 of rubber, $5,000,000 of molasses, $2,225,000 of cocoa and $1,500,000 of wool, which with $3[illegible] worth of purchases not detailed make up a grand total of $181,000,000.

Now, what did we sell them in return? Not much to be sure. Our live stock trade amounted to over $800,000. We sold a little over $1,000,000 worth of agricultural implements and machinery. Of breadstuffs over $10,000,000. Carriages, street cars and railway supplies amounted to $1,250,000. Our cotton goods sold to the value of over $7,000,000. To have their shoes shined our southern neighbors paid for our blacking about $75,000. We sold them books and maps up to nearly $500,000. We supplied a little wearing apparel, some codfish, not much cordage, and did a very fair trade in tools, builders' hardware and general machinery. We sold 38 locomotives and 590 pianos and organs. We sold over $3,000,000 worth of lumber and did a big business in kerosene oil. In perfumery, soap, clocks and watches our trade was fairly good. In stationary engines and heavy iron work we competed with England to some extent. Naval stores, lard and dairy products make a fair showing. Generally speaking, nearly all our line of manufactured goods were represented in small quantities.

Undoubtedly the Philadelphia Centennial exposition was the means of extending our foreign trade and has been of permanent advantage to our manufacturers. The exposition of 1892 would further extend this advantage."

A SPANISH AMERICAN MERCHANT'S VIEWS.

"In regard to the benefits that the exposition would be to the commercial interests of this country," said Mr. J. M. Ceballos yesterday, "I will say that as president of the Spanish American Commercial Union the subject has been discussed at our different meetings and we are all unanimously in favor of it and the [illegible] to contribute liberally, not out of the funds of the association but by private contributions. On the same day that the meetings were held at the mayor's office and chamber of commerce a meeting was held at the rooms of the association and a committee appointed, consisting of J. M. [illegible], Charles R. Flint, W. H. T. Hughes, [illegible] and myself as president, to attend the meeting at the mayor's office. It shows clearly the importance this association attaches to the exposition of 1892 as one of the best means of having all our neighbors of Spanish America visit this country, see for themselves our various manufactures, make selections from our novelties, and in this way introduce our goods in their different countries.

TO FOLLOW IN COLUMBUS'S STEPS.

"As an evidence of the interest that Spain takes in the celebration the Spanish government intends, it is announced, to commemorate the anniversary by having a fleet of vessels sail from the port of Palos and follow the exact course of Columbus, visiting all the points as he discovered them. It will be interesting if arrangements can be made—as I have no doubt they can—to have the fleet continue its voyage to New York. The Compania Transatlantica Espanola have always given very fine exhibits at all expositions and sent models of their vessels. I do not doubt that very advantageous rates for passengers and freight could be made between Spain and all the ports that the steamers touch, so that exhibitors from South America and the Phillippine Islands could send their goods at nominal cost. That would be the best support that the Spanish line could give to the exposition."

GOOD THINGS SURE TO FOLLOW.

Ex-Mayor William R. Grace, whose firm has extensive commercial relations with South America, is enthusiastic as to the advantages of the exposition and the benefits which will result to the trade between this country and the lands to the south of us.

"It is to-day," he said, "a matter of universal comment among business men abroad that the standing of South America in the European markets has been greatly improved, and that there will be a vast increase because of the exhibits which have been made at the Paris exposition. The exhibit of the Argentine Republic in Paris, for instance, is probably the finest that has ever been made by any South American country. Chile, Brazil, Venezuela and Mexico also have exhibits which are remarkably well worth study, and which demonstrate conclusively, as compared with their exhibits in 1876, how rapid, how thorough and how stable the progress of these countries has been. From this point of view, therefore, the exhibition of 1892 may prove of incalculable benefit to trade between this country and South America. It is commonly agreed in England that no single event ever gave such an impetus to trade between England and other countries as the first great fair in London.

"It will not do to expect too much from the exposition, however. It will be like a great show window—a chance to display goods, show the character of the shop and invite patronage. But if terms and prices are not satisfactory to the buyers, no matter how fine the display of goods may be, there will be no business. Now these questions of terms and prices are affected by the systems of legislation both abroad and here. The discussion of the questions growing out of this legislation taken in connection with such an exhibition later on, is the thing which will really produce the essential benefit. We send Chile, for instance, all classes of agricultural machinery. Through peculiar circumstances our manufacturers have the inside in this business. In other classes of machinery we do not do so well in competition with European countries. Neither do we compete to such advantage in cotton prints, for instance. Much the same thing may be said of our trade with the Argentine and Brazil. With regard to a thousand and one articles, we are virtually shut out from export to those countries for reasons which every American merchant understands, and of which all European merchants take systematic advantage.

ENGLAND AND GERMANY'S ADVANTAGE.

"England and Germany occupy an altogether exceptional position in many regards—the one because of its general mercantile system, the other because of its cheap labor and bounties. Not only do South American countries find a market easier of access for their goods in English ports, but it is Englishmen who supply the great bulk of the banking facilities on which the business of the United States with South America is done, so that from the point of view of transportation, as well as of money exchanges are most easily and most naturally made through the English markets.

"One of the things that it would be necessary for us to do is to teach the South American countries that New York is itself a great financial center, and nothing could more greatly facilitate trade than a deliberate effort on the part of American merchants to accustom South American money markets to the use of drafts on New York bankers. Of course, in certain classes of cheap cotton goods, such as Osnaburgs, sheeting and shirtings, where we have the raw material more cheaply than it can be had by any one else, in certain classes of agricultural machinery, where we have the advantage of the exclusive right to manufacture under our own patents, etc., we can can do business to advantage. In lumber, petroleum, lard and breadstuffs we occupy a position of natural advantage, and the trade could be greatly developed if the South American tariffs could be reduced by reciprocity treaties, and if too long credits were not asked.

OUR DISADVANTAGE.

"The disadvantage under which we suffer can be illustrated by one little instance. We take a large part—much more than half—of the entire clip of Chile wool. Carpet manufacturers in this country, because of the duty, actually have to pay more for the common wool than the Canadians have to pay for merino and Mestiza. In view of the fact that the duty on the two latter grades is so high that no market can be found for it here, it is shipped in bond to Canada and the Canadians actually get the better grade of wool at a lower price than our carpet manufacturers get the common wool, duty paid.

"Anything like a great exposition or like an international congress which concentrates thought and attention on these matters necessarily results in the improvement of trade. But there can be no improvement without a willingness on the part of our legislators, first to study and understand these questions, and then to free trade from laws which actually strangle instead of promote it. Our merchants themselves are very much to blame, in view of the fact that they do not sufficiently understand the wants and requirements of foreign countries, their habits, customs, trade prejudices, etc., nearly so well as the Germans and the English do, and therefore do not make their goods sufficiently in conformity with the demands of the South American markets.

SOUTH AMERICAN CREDITS.

"One of the reasons why the American merchants do not do so large a volume of trade with South America as English and Germans is because we are more conservative in the extension of credits. When the South Americans themselves learn that all their markets would be healthier and continuously in a stronger position if they were not themselves applicants for long credits on the smallest possible margins, the greater the inducement will be for Americans, who can always find fairly good use for their money at home, to put it out in these foreign countries. Germans and English, who have to find use and investment for more money than we, of course take longer risks.

"An exhibition would help to make all this sort of thing perfectly understood and appreciated. In addition to all of which, of course there comes the large, general fact of making the countries understand each other's institutions, tendencies and habits more thoroughly and more perfectly, and also lead to a realization of the fact that peace and industrial co-operation lie at the foundation of national prosperity the world over."

Dignified, Simple and Noble.

Springfield Republican.

The song which John Boyle O'Reilly sang at old Plymouth, the ringing tribute of a man born of Celtic stock and a devout member of the Roman Catholic church, is the fine utterance of a genuine and strong nature whose vision is wide, one who presents the essentials of faith and charity in their all embracing and uplifting scope. To our mind the poem is the choicest product of the celebration, not only because of its source, but its dignity of sentiments simply and nobly presented. It embodies the fire of the person, but that is subordinated to the impressiveness of his theme, and the whole is true Americanism, as has been produced by conditions now cosmopolitan, the legitimate and sound outgrowth of the ideas of freedom brought to Plymouth by the forefathers. It was a bold innovation to call on an Irish patriot to celebrate the virtues of the ultra Protestants, the Pilgrims, but it was an act of wise liberality, a proper recognition of the growth achieved and a national spirit which roots deep in the soil of New England, and the departure was splendidly justified in the outcome.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Notes of Recent Publications—The Magazines of the Month.

"The Slaves of Folly"—The North American and Quarterly Reviews—Good Things in Scribner's and Lippincott's.

"The Slaves of Folly," by William Horace Brown, is a story written to show the ample opportunities offered to men to prove the evil and folly of gambling without frequenting the ordinary and justly-denounced gambling hells. It is a story of to-day. A recital of a young man who enjoyed the benefits, pleasures and luxuries of this life without having deserved them by any merit of his own, yet who considered that he had received only what was rightfully due him. After leading a careless life, his youthful irregularities only increasing in the man, and wrecking the life of a noble woman, he is finally arrested for forgery, and is led away a prisoner in irons. Here is a brief sketch of the plot: Linley Caverton, a young man of uncertain habits, after many promises of leading a better life, marries a fair, gentle woman with a trusting, confiding nature. After a few months of happiness he begins to fall into his careless ways, but for each offense is careful to frame some excuse or his neglect. He studiously deceives his wife and continues gambling away his earnings until they are reduced to the most extreme poverty, and the wife is sick from overwork. At this time a fortune is left to Mrs. Caverton. Linley now leads a faster life than before, until the money is gone, when he deserts his faithful wife for a woman who had wrecked her husband's life. The arrest of Caverton for forgery, and of his mistress for robbery, closes the scene, while the deserted wife finds happiness in a love that fills her soul and brings forgetfulness of the past.

Among the contents of the August number of the North American Review are "A Word With Professor Huxley," by Lyman Abbott; a continuation of "An English View of the Civil War," by Lord Wolseley, a discussion of the question "Will Reason Exterminate Christianity?" by David Swing, "Leaves From the Diary of a Dramatist," by Dion Boucicault, a letter on Allen Thorndyke Rice, by Mr. Gladstone, an article on the Johnstown disaster, by Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania, "Great Britain and the Confederacy," by Henry Clews, "The German Army," by Karl Blind and "The Sense of Honor in Americans," by Professor N. S. Shaler.

The Quarterly Review for July, which the Leonard Scott Company reprints from the English edition, makes no concession to the mid summer season on the score of lightness. All its contributions show the same solid characteristics as their predecessors. American subjects get a fair recognition in the first and last numbers. The first one is an optimistic view of the career of Canada, the last covers practically the ground of Bryce's new history of the "American Commonwealth," while the digest of the "Diary and Letters of Gouverneur Morris" contains an American's view of a difficult period of European history and sheds considerable new light upon some portions of it.

Three of the articles are specifically literary. That on "Shakespeare" and "Venice" draws from the plays of the world's greatest dramatist so many and so exact references to the topography of the "Lagoon City" and its surroundings that any other assertion than that Shakespeare at one time or another visited Italy seems improbable. "Old Age" takes the reader from the "Elder Cato" of Cicero to Tennyson's second "Locksley Hall" and shows the modern view of man's seventh stage.

The position of Virgil at different periods of the world's history relative to that of Homer and the comparative excellence of the most recent English translations of the Æneid, as shown in the set passages, go to make one of the best contributions to the current issue.

Justin McCarthy, M. P., the famous Irish leader and author of "The History of Our Own Times," will contribute the end paper to Scribner's Magazine for September under the title of "Three Dream Heroines." These heroines are "Sally in our Alley," "Fair Inez" and "Annabel Lee," whom he considers as types of charming women.

W. Hamilton Gibson will write in Scribner's for September, on "Night Witchery," describing what may be seen of nature on a very dark night with other organs of sense than the eye. The article will be illustrated with a number of Mr. Gibson's most characteristic drawings.

Science again becomes prominent in Scribner's Magazine after a month of good fiction. "Electricity in Lighting" is a good history of the arc and incandescent lights from their discovery to the present time. "How to Feed a Railway" is a paper on the fixed charges of a railway line, and explains where the money goes aside from dividends, salaries and wages. The opening article on "Lawn Tennis" may also be classed among the scientific contributions, for it is a careful analysis of the work of the best players. "Tarpon Fishing in Florida" will interest any fisherman who is manly enough to fight a fellow of his own size, for the average weight of the tarpon is about that of man.

Two good articles are on Tennyson, one descriptive of "His First Flight" and the other a comparison and study of "The Two Locksley Halls." There are also two good short stories, one being some memories of an army officer who had chanced to love too early in life, and the other a man's recollections of one of the bugbears of his youth. The best of the fiction, though, and one of the best bits that any magazine has given us in a long time, is "The New Poverty," by George Parsons Lathrop. The scene is laid in the Catskills more than a century after the present generation will be gathered to its fathers. The Henry George land tax system has caused people to live in railway cars, which are side tracked wherever their occupants prefer to abide for a time. Wealth is a disgrace and poverty has become a patent of aristocracy. From beginning to end the sketch is a delicious bit of topsyturveydom and satire.

St. Nicholas continues to be good enough for all children to want it. Stories, pictures and poems are all within the comprehension of youngsters, and there always is a pleasing variety in the table of contents. The August number contains at least half a dozen stories which men and women as well as their boys and girls, can read with interest. One of them is "Midsummer Pirates," the story of a game played by boys with half a dozen catboats, aided by a stiff breeze. Another is "Captain Duck," a tale of the Modoc war, in which a crippled Indian and a friendless white boy are the principal actors. "A Mutiny on a Gold Ship" is an exciting story, so is "Little Menan Light." A tale of a man who fell into a pit which he had dug for others is called "The Shag Back Panther." Among the Florida Keys is continued in a style which will please all boys, and a mathematical question about the cost of an antique Egyptian necklace will provoke a great deal of slate and pencil work.

The complete novel in the August number of Lippincott's is by William H. Babcock and entitled "An Invention of the Enemy." It is an amusing story, centered about a couple of villagers, each of whom is an inventor of something new in barbed wire fences, while a shrewd manufacturer, who had talked with both, renewed his own patent in terms which included both inventors' ideas. Meanwhile a great deal of human nature is developed all around, and the author handles it skilfully. Next in interest to the novel is Colonel James M. Scovel's personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln, which will intensify the general and proper impression that Lincoln was at one and the same time full of serious purpose and sense of humor. Colonel Scovel tells some new and good stories illustrative of Lincoln's character. Mr. George W. Childs's "Recollections" this month are of a trip to Europe, during which he met a number of men whom the world delights to honor. Felix Oswald writes of "Floods and Their Causes," and gives some warnings which Americans should make haste to heed. Judge Tourgee's "With Gauge & Swallow" comes to an end, for which many readers will be sorry. An original attack on the evolution theory is signed by W. G. A. Bonwill. Some interesting chat about Verestchagin and his work is contributed by B. Macgahan. In the editorial departments are some short signed essays which are remarkably bright. One of them, by Julian Hawthorne, on "French Propriety," is delightfully droll, though as solemn of diction as a sermon, and Mr. Melville Philips writes charmingly about Robert Louis Stevenson and his latest book.

A steady improvement is noticeable in the quality of Outing's contents—the articles are longer and better written than in old times and they read as if the editor recognized the truth that men of all ages, as well as the "young fellows," are interested in outdoor sports. "Moose Hunting in Aroostook" is the first paper in the August number; it is well written and contains some very fine illustrations. A capital paper by Emily A. Thackray, is entitled "Camps and Tramps for Women." Many a man might give this to his tired wife and in return receive an outing suggestion which would cost no more than a series of physicians' visits with the accompanying prescriptions. C. Bowyer Vaux, a wonderful wielder of the paddle, writes early enough of "The Canoe Meet at the Thousand Islands" to remind tourists of one of the most picturesque aquatic affairs of early August. "With the Lee Rails Awash" by Charles F. Gray, is a stirring story of the principal yachting contests of the past two months. There are also good papers on trout fishing, on what is coming in new canoes, and on sport in South American forests. "The Monthly Record" of sports is full, as usual.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Several of the states have passed laws against importing dressed beef into their borders from other states. Indiana has such a law, but on appeal from a lower court on a writ of habeas corpus set the defendant free on the ground that the state law is an infraction of the Constitution of the United States that reserves to congress the right to regulate interstate commerce. It is thought this decision is so manifestly just that all states that have passed such laws will accept it as final without carrying the question to the supreme court on appeal.

Nature only forgot one thing in planting this country together, and that was to build comfortable wagon roads in the best places to satisfy the needs of the pioneers. It would have been too much to expect to see railroads existing in a state of nature, but a few good wagon roads would have been very acceptable. People are not abundant enough in many parts of our state to make as good roads as they need, and it is hard work to make them. Our people are not fond of work of that character, and the consequence is that roads do not exist as they should and no one knows when or where they will come to pass.

The Behring sea difficulty is merely a little game that is played for the purpose of deciding one of the difficult questions of our day. There is a vast difference between Behring sea and Hudson's bay and the latter is a closed sea beyond doubt. The action of congress was rather rash and the president is enforcing the law sufficiently to test the question. To suppose that Uncle Samuel intends to follow up this seizure business is assuming too much. The old gentleman only intends to make a case for the Old World to arbitrate. Great Britain is not at all excited and evidently looks on the late seizure as a matter of business.

The Pall Mall Gazette considers that America won a signal victory in the Samoan conference, and admires the way in which our United States squared yards with a first class power and held our own. Blaine of Maine seems to have acted with judicious firmness there, and was behind our delegation on every point. His firmness and good sense were available, and there was no show of foolishness. The result of that conference is everything to the Samoans and they should appreciate what our country has done for them. Germany is acting so handsomely in the matter, that it causes general good feeling and satisfaction on all sides. There is no desire to boast of success, but the settlements are honorable to all concerned.

Desert claims possess value, and the time is coming and not far away, when what is called "desert" land will bear great crops and possess much value. Caldwell is on the Short Line, this side of Boise, and is as much desert as sage and sand can create. The Tribune published there tells of visitors who came to inspect their desert claims" or ranches. They were Governor Thomas, of Utah, and Mr. Lannan, manager of the Salt Lake Tribune. They have claims as desert land that they have improved by planting out orchards, building houses and digging wells. The wide sage plain along Snake river possesses great fertility and promises to be a valuable fruit region. An irrigating canal furnishes moisture, and wherever that land can be irrigated it will produce ordinary crops of fruit in abundance.

An Olympia correspondent of an exchange says of the members of the constitutional convention: "A majority of the members are men of small caliber and as fit to frame a constitution for the state of Washington as a lot of [illegible]." He adds that a man of Indian [illegible] asserts that "this convention will be the funeral of many of its members." All such talk is worse than foolish; it is spiteful and malicious. It would be remarkable indeed if this convention should be composed only of men of wonderful genius. But there is no reason to doubt that throughout Washington every community selected men of good common sense, and made choice of average minds adapted to the work in view. To disparage them is a want of decency no reasonable journal should indulge in. A tree is known by its fruit, and when the convention bears its fruit in due time it will be soon enough to pronounce judgment on it.

The superintendent of the Spokane water works went away and left his post vacant, at least it was not filled, so when the cry of fire went up the other evening there was no water supply, and the holocaust of flame swept away ten millions of property. Spokane possesses natural water power that leaves no excuse possible for this terrible loss. The great water fall gives unlimited power, and there should be a reservoir on the hill south of town to call on in case of need. It seems there were large pumps that could have been set to work, if in order for operating, that would have made it easy to extinguish the fire in its early stage, but these pumps were not connected and could not be used, so the flames had no check and the fabulous wealth of the new city went as fast as wind and fire could make destruction of it. How apt the scripture: "How great a matter a little fire kindleth!" Human carelessness often creates fearful wrecks.

We used to read only a few years ago about the fiendish acts of Geronimo, the cruel Apache chief, who delighted to murder whites wherever he found them. The people of Arizona mourn the loss of many friends sacrificed to the inhuman barbarity of this savage, who was at last taken prisoner and sent to Florida. Since his departure there is more security for life and property. Strange to say, this Arizona savage has become amenable to civilization and Christianizing influences and has become an exemplary member of a Florida Sunday school. He and his entire band have turned over a new leaf, and the chief officiates as usher and master of ceremonies. No doubt this is considered a triumph of civilization by the Florida teachers, and to a certain extent it may be, but Geronimo's conversion from savagery would probably not be permanent and so satisfactory if he and his band could be put back again in the Arizona wilds. It would hardly be safe for the Sunday school teachers to accompany him to the wilderness again and trust to his conversion for their safety.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

Oregon Fruit Now Shipped to Helena, Denver and Chicago.

Raising Calves—An Easily-Handled Forage Crop—Hens and Their Broods—Grade Draft Horses—Underdraining

The question if Oregon fruit can be shipped to the Eastern markets is important and where there may be an advantage in the climate of California that makes fruit more enduring and firmer for shipment it is yet true that Oregon fruits are sent to Helena Denver and Chicago in good condition. Of course pears and winter apples are all right, but the doubt refers to the shipment of car load lots of stone fruits which can now be furnished here and from now on fruit will be grown in greater quantity than ever before. The dry climate of California produces fruits with firmer texture and a tougher skin, so that the same variety of fruit grown in that latitude will bear shipment to a distance better than in usual seasons when grown in our moist climate.

The present season has been dry enough to secure us the best results to be expected. It seems to have been two weeks in advance of the season of 1888 which was also earlier than usual. The peach plum in average seasons ripens here August 1st, last year they were ripe two weeks earlier and all gone before that time. This year they are all gone July 22d and were ripe enough to ship to distant points the first week in July. Bartlett pears were ripe to ship and car loads were shipped on July 6th 1889 so the present season is at least three weeks in advance of ordinary years. All our fruit must possess as good qualities for shipping to a distance at present as we can ever expect, and the indications are favorable that they will ship well and create a good reputation for Oregon products. This is a matter of importance to Oregon for fruit growing annually assumes increased importance as a means of income to our producers.

RAISING CALVES

The important point in raising calves, at whatever season they may be dropped, is to give the animals a fair start in life for which purpose nothing equals milk as it is taken from the cow. Though some practice separating the calf from the cow, for four or five days taking all the milk. At least this period ought to elapse before the milk will be fit to use as human food. After separating the calf from the cow new milk should be liberally fed for two weeks, and if this can be continued even longer, it is desirable. No substitute for new milk should be given for two weeks. After that however, more economical food may be compounded if desired, and the calf will still thrive. If skim-milk can be afforded, the calf will thrive on liberal feeding.

Willard says that if whey and oil meal be properly prepared, it can be made to serve as a very good substitute for milk. The whey should be dipped off when sweet from the vat, then bring it to the boiling point and turn it upon the oil meal. Let the mixture stand till night, then feed. In the morning whey, sweet from the vat may be fed. At the commencement a little less than a pint of oil meal per day will be sufficient for four calves. This may be gradually increased till each calf has a daily ration of half a pint. At first it is better not to feed calves all the whey they will drink at a time. A large feed of whey cloys the appetite and deranges the health. A half pail of whey at first is enough for a feed which may be increased to three-fourths of a pail and to a pail as the calf increases in age. Two meals a day if the cow runs in a good pasture is sufficient. Calves fed in this way ought not to be weaned until they can get a good bite of after feed from the early cut meadow. It is important to keep them in a growing thrifty condition, with no check. When weaned earlier their growth is often checked by reason of short, dry or innutritious feed in pastures.

When whey is not to be had for feeding young calves, the following is sometimes used. Take three quarts of linseed meal and mix with thirty quarts of boiling water when it is left to digest for twenty four hours and it is then poured into a boiler on the fire having thirty one quarts of boiling water. It is here boiled for half an hour, being stirred with a perforated paddle to prevent lumps and produce perfect incorporation. It is then set aside to cool, and is given blood warm. When first used it is mixed with milk in small quantity. The milk is gradually decreased till they get the mucilage only. Indian meal may be used in place of bean meal. Buckwheat meal cooked into porridge and added to whey is reported to have been used with good results.

It is considered a desirable point to hasten the maturity of the young animal by good feeding and care, so that it will come into milk at two years, as such heifers make better milkers than those that come in at three years, besides the profit of milk for an extra season.—Rural World.

A FORAGE CROP EASILY HANDLED.

O. E. Morse, in an address before the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, said: The need of the hour is a forage crop that can be harvested and handled by machinery, that will be as valuable as a good crop of timothy, clover millet or corn fodder, and during the same year furnish a growth to be plowed under of equal value to a good crop of clover millet or buckwheat, a crop that takes from the free air and sunlight and gives to the soil. Such a crop is found in the earlier varieties of sorghum or sugar cane. Sown broadcast early in April on ordinary prairie land, it is ready to cut in July, and will furnish from three to five tons of choicest forage to the acre. Another growth at once starts from the stubble, and is ready for the mower or reaper by the middle of September with an equal or better yield than the first, or better still is ready for the plow—to be turned under to invigorate the soil.

In case of a shortage in pasture stock can be turned upon it for a month's feeding and still have a good growth to be plowed under. By its use, grass lands can be exempted from occupation during the extreme dry season, when close feeding has such fatal effect. It has another advantage—that of absolute certainty. It is drouth-proof. By its use profitable dairying is made possible throughout the entire year. It brings forage, pasture and fertilizer from the same ground at one plowing and seeding. So I say to you sow sorghum, feed it, and laugh while your land and stock grow fat.

MANAGEMENT OF SITTING HENS AND THEIR BROODS

I will herewith give my method, not thinking it so much better than others, yet amateurs may find some idea useful to them. Naturally we sometimes come across a cranky hen with which the best-laid plans will gang astray, but I seldom have trouble with my pure bred hens, and keep no others. First, when a quiet hen shows symptoms of broodiness and I wish to set her, I leave her on the laying nest at night, meanwhile I prepare my sitting box made of refuse bits of lumber size about sixteen inches square inside, sixteen inches high in front, fourteen in the rear, making a slanting roof of shakes or matched boards to shed rain, with a sliding door in front so as to keep out all intruders that would disturb the hen as well as to know she is there tending to biz. I use soft straw for nests using plenty to keep the eggs from contact with bottom board; put in the eggs and at dusk carefully transfer the hen to the place I wish her to sit. If at all doubtful of her do not let her off the first day, but afterward let her out at 5 o'clock every day to feed closing door after she returns to her nest. When the hen has set two weeks I give her a thorough dusting with buhach about half hour before feed time; have an extra box prepared with new nest; while biddie is off, transfer the eggs to new nest washing all soiled ones with warm water, taking away the old nest and burning out, the box is ready for use again. I set from two to four hens at same time so in case of poor hatch from either, can give chicks to two or three, as needed. At evening of day they begin to hatch or morning if they hatch during the night, I put all the eggs that are slow under one hen taking out all chicks (as the hen will not sit down close enough to the eggs to give the required warmth, as she raises herself to accommodate the chicks in their moving around) giving chicks to the other hens, and do not disturb them again for about twelve hours, when they will be ready for a light breakfast of moist (not wet) bread crumbs; later, when the sun is warm, I take my bottle of oil, in which is a few drops of oil of sassafras, take off the hen and rub a little on under side of wings and breast give her a feed of grain and water, while she is regaling herself take the chickens one by one just touch tops of heads and under the throat with the oil dropping them into my—I came near saying apron, but fear you might think I had adopted Chinese uniform, as wife is usually around at such times I will say "our"—apron to keep warm till biddie is ready to resume charge, when I put all in coop throwing a few crumbs for chicks, as hen has had a good feed she will devote herself to hovering them for next two days and that is about all they need in that time eating very little, in two weeks I examine chicks heads, if I find any knots or lice use the oil as before when time for hen to leave them give a dust of buhach. With such treatment and proper food your broods will surely thrive. Fuss and feathers! who is going to all that trouble? I hear some say. Wait a bit it won't take you half so long to do it as I am in telling or as it will to get rid of the vermin after they get a foothold. I have found if press of other work or in absence of our apron I failed to use the precaution I invariably had trouble with the head louse.—O J Albee in California Cackler

MORE ABOUT SCRUB AND GRADE DRAFT HORSES

Whatever may be said of the market East for the scrub horses there is no doubt but that there is a demand, both at home and abroad, for heavy draft horses. There is more than double yes more than treble the common horses in use than there are good ones and more than double bought and sold every day. Still, if we count the difference in the price of a pair of common horses and a good draught team we will find that the latter is in demand at a figure much above the difference in the cost of production. Outside of the original investment in good mares and a heavy stallion of high standing the cost of production is not so very much larger than the cost of the common scrub. Large horses of course eat a little more than small ones and require a little care, but they are generally kind easily broken and don't know anything but to pull, and with the exception of the fleet roadster and the well mated carriage horse is the most salable animal produced. Then the great beauty of the draft horse is in the fact that like a beef steer, he almost sells by weight. There is at least but little training necessary to fit him for service and where a man has but little idea of how to handle or train a horse he can do but little better than to grow the heavy class.—Rocky Mountain Husbandman

PRUNE PRODUCTION

The Commercial Bulletin of New York notes the growing influence of American dried fruits on the foreign product. The industry on the coast has made rapid progress, prices have receded, bringing the fruit within reach of a larger number of persons and so stimulating consumption that no stock has been carried over for two years. The California prune crop of last year was unusually fine while that of France was inferior giving opportunity for controlling the market that was fully availed of. But the French growers will not give up without a struggle. They are fully alive to California competition, and the inroads into their trade. The various commercial bodies have taken up the subject and shown the growers the necessity for low prices if the industry is to be continued. Throughout Lot and Garonne the great producing section, immense orchards already exist and the cost of raising the fruit is small. The trees are well trimmed up and the soil they stand in annually cropped with vegetables and grain. Having the trees which are heavy bearers and their fruit so much gain the French farmers will undoubtedly mark their prunes for whatever they will bring and the California growers will be obliged to meet them on a low scale of value, which at least will benefit the consumer.

SUCCESS IN UNDERDRAINING

T A Stanley related at a meeting of the Connecticut Board of Agriculture an experiment performed on a piece of land which he obtained for $100 an acre. It was plowed manured and sowed to corn fodder. It received the usual cultivation but the moist soil prevented the work from being done in the best manner. There was not half a crop hardly enough to pay for the labor. It lay idle one season, and was underdrained. It was sown last year to ensilage corn. The draining had already done so much good that although naturally wet, his land could already be worked much sooner after a rain than any other part of the farm high or low. "At harvest" said Mr Stanley, "such a field of corn I never saw. Evenly through out the whole field the corn stood from 13 to 14 feet high." A single drain was put in an other field, and the whole field planted with corn fodder. When it reached maturity all the corn was a foot higher over and near the drain than in the west of the field. Mr S says that draining has more than paid 10 per cent. on the sum it has cost. Our own experiments have told a better story. Of the many miles of tile-draining which we have laid, the whole cost has been paid within three years by the increase of the crops to say nothing of the increased value of the land.

MORE GLANDERS.

Oakland papers report the finding of three glandered horses on Blair's dairy ranch and their condemnation by Veterinary Surgeon Stimpson, who notified the health officer. The dairyman, however did not kill the animals, but secreted the two worst cases in a stable at Golden Gate, while he sold the third to another dairyman in Pleasant valley.

By reason of the late legislative botching, referred to in the Rural of April 20, it is no longer against the law to sell glandered beasts within the limits of California so long as one does not import them from outside, but still any owner or person having charge of an animal known to have glanders or farcy, who refuses or omits to kill such animals, therein commits a crime against the public health and (according to Sec. 401 of the Penal Code) is guilty of a misdemeanor. The recklessness or cupidity that will imperil not merely other people's live stock but human life itself, by keeping or selling creatures infected with this virulent contagion, should be dealt with summarily and we hope the Alameda county authorities will follow up the matter sharply.—Pacific Rural Press

WASTE OF PASTURING

Hiram Smith says that if his whole farm of 200 acres was well seeded down even in its present state of high fertility it would not pasture the 100 head that now get their full living summer and winter off the products of the farm. So it will be seen that if he did not largely eschew the ruinous wasteful methods of pasturing—that thousands of the best of them think they must adhere to—the first and immediate effect would be to lessen the number of cows that can be, and are, well fed the year around from what grows on the farm, or what is bought with what is raised on it—and that without using the receipts from the butter money. It is only fair to say that this was not done during the two drouthy seasons of 1886 and 1887, when the crops—other than corn—materially suffered, but it is also true that, during the season of 1888, the farm produced more than the cows could consume. Given a succession of ordinary years, and the result will be, with such intensive farming, more animals on the same acres, or a surplus of food—for the structural healthy limit of a cow's capacity to consume is tested there every day, now.

NIGHT AIR.

An extraordinary fallacy is the dread of night air. What air can we breathe at night but night air? The choice is between pure night air from without and foul air from within. Most people prefer the latter—an unaccountable choice. What will they say if it is proved to be true that fully one-half of all the diseases we suffer from are occasioned by people sleeping with windows shut? An open window, most nights in the year, can never hurt anyone. In great cities night air is often the best and purest to be had in twenty four hours. I could better understand shutting the windows in town during the day than during the night, for the sake of the sick.

The absence of smoke, the quiet all tend to make night the best time for airing the patient. One of our brightest medical authorities on consumption and climate has told me that the air of London is never so good as after 10 o'clock at night. Always air your room then from the outside air if possible. Windows are made to open, doors are made to shut—a truth which seems extremely difficult of apprehension. Every room must be aired from without—every passage from within.—Sanitary World

THE NATION'S FLOCKS

The conditions of the sheep of the country is thus given in the report of the commissioner of agriculture just issued. The past season has been very favorable to the condition of sheep which averages for the entire country 97.4 on the basis of 100 as the standard of normal healthfulness and average condition as to flesh.

The percentage of losses during the twelve months from April 1 1888 to April 1 1889 has been light being only 3.8 as compared with 4.6 for the twelve months ended a year ago. In all the states and territories except eight the percentage of losses is reduced, and in a number of cases the reduction is large. In New Hampshire it is reduced from 3.5 to 2, in Massachusetts from 3 to 1.8, in Delaware from 3 to 2, in Alabama from 7 to 4.6, in Indiana from 4.7 to 3.2, in Illinois, from 4.4 to 3, in Idaho from 6 to 3 and Wyoming from 6.1 to 3. The eight exceptions are Connecticut where the percentage is unchanged, and Maryland Georgia Florida Michigan Iowa Nevada and Arizona where it is increased by amounts ranging from one tenth to 1 per cent in Maryland and Arizona to 1.5 per cent. in Nevada.

CLOVER HAY

It is a matter of experience that clover hay is a far better fodder for cows than timothy hay. The reasons for this are various. 1st, clover is almost always in better condition when cut than timothy being younger and tenderer and consequently richer in nutriment and more digestible than if cut later, 2d it is better cured as a rule because it must necessarily be less dried to save the leaves or it would be nothing but stalks, while timothy can be more highly dried with impunity. 3d clover is richer in nitrogenous matters than timothy and the nutriment contained in it is more digestible. Thus clover hay contains from 11 per cent in poor quality to 15 per cent in the best of nitrogenous matters while timothy hay contains 9 and mixed hay from 7 to 12 per cent. of these substances in clover from 7 to 10¾ per cent. are digestible while in timothy only 5¾ per cent and in mixed hay from 3 to 8 per cent are digestible.

FRENCH CREAM CHEESE

Enough rennet is added to the morning's milk set in a jar at a temperature of 70 deg to coagulate in two or three hours and then left for twenty to twenty four hours. Instead of any special mold a common hair sieve may be used. After pouring out the whey gathered on top of the curd cut it with a skimmer in slices and lay it in the sieve to drain. When this is done, cream in quantities to suit (but not more than that from an equal quantity of milk as was coagulated) is then added and mixed by mashing with a wooden pestle like a potato masher until it is a uniform paste, this is then placed in wicker molds as a rule, heart shaped and it is ready for use. It must be kept in an ice box if wanted to keep several days.—Monrad's A B C in Cheese Making

A Cure for Summer Complaint.

Parents who have young children will be interested in the experience of Mr Alex Moir a prominent druggist at Britt Ia. He says "During the summer of 1882, my little girl 2 years of age was taken seriously ill with summer complaint, so common to children of that age. After being treated by a physician, and getting no better, I took from my shelves a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. She felt relieved after the first dose, and in three days was entirely well." For sale by L. Blumauer & Co.

THERE IS WORK FOR ALL.

The Country Is Prosperous and the Labor Market Has a Strong Tone.

Portland Is a Good Place for the Laboring Man—Wages Good, Rent Reasonable, Living Cheap and Everything Favorable.

Captain John O'Brien, President of the Federated Trades, is as well informed on the labor situation as any one in the Northwest. Replying to a reporter's question, he said yesterday:

"I look upon the condition of the labor market on this coast as being very favorable. This is especially the case in the Northwest. Matters are in better shape here than in any section of the country. Of course, in states where iron is mined a great many men are employed and a great deal of work is given out at different periods of the year. In the Northwest the work is more constant."

"Are the trades unions gaining in membership?"

"Very rapidly. The membership of some of them has increased 100 per cent. during the past year. The Federated Trades now number 1500 members, compared with less than 900 at the same time last year. Central labor unions have been organized at Seattle and Tacoma, the Federated Trades at Spokane Falls, and steps are being taken to organize the Federated Trades at Vancouver, B. C."

"How does immigration affect the labor market?"

"Favorably, if the immigration is of the right kind. The kind of men who should be encouraged to come to this country are those who take up farms and become producers, those who create a demand for the work of tradesmen and laborers. We can not have a good labor market unless we have a good agricultural or mining country. I would judge from the healthy condition of the labor market that the country is settling up very rapidly. The settlement of the country enlivens business in the cities, and the increased business in the cities creates a demand for labor."

"Is the tone of the market strong?"

"Yes. Last year we had to contend with the workmen who flocked to the Northwest when the Southern California boom fell through. Then hundreds of tradesmen and laborers also made their way to Puget sound from the East, and if they could not find employment there they came to Portland. The country must be prosperous or it could not furnish employment to this great influx of men."

"What effect have the big fires at Seattle, Ellensburgh and Spokane Falls had upon labor?"

"A very beneficial effect. The re-building of those towns will give employment to thousands of men for many months. It is in such exigencies as these that the workingman has the advantage over the capitalist. When a town is swept by fire the capitalist must pay out money to rebuild, which has a neutralizing effect upon the advantages of the two classes. It is all for the benefit of the laboring man."

"Do you think the labor market will retain its strength for some time to come?"

"Yes. The natural resources of this northwest country are hardly touched. Men are needed to develop them. Now that their development seems to have been begun in earnest a big demand for labor will be created and the supply will be sufficient to meet the demand."

"How is the situation in Portland?"

"None of the trades are making complaint. One sees very few men in the building trades standing on the streets waiting for work. Activity prevails in all building lines now and the outlook for the winter is good. The employers being very reasonable there is no discontent among the workingmen. The employers in the Northwest are what are called in labor parlance, first-class white men. Only a few are inclined to pull down labor. The building tradesmen have very little trouble. Of course, there are a few contractors who hire non-union men, but the best of them do not. No unreasonable demands are made by any of the unions. The wages paid here compare favorably with those paid in any part of the country. In several respects the scale is better than the scale in vogue in the East. Food does not cost so much, rent is cheaper, and working clothes are as cheap here as anywhere in the country. The better grade of clothing costs a little more than in the East. In Australia the workingmen are a little better off as regards the strength of local unions and finances, but they have no international unions, which has the power to help local unions. Nearly all the unions here are allied with the National union and beside the American Federation of Labor gives them its support when needed."

SEVERAL CASUALTIES TO RECORD.

A Drunk Did Not Know That His Arm Was Broken—Foot Injured—Condition of Miller.

A man named Charles Nelson was taken to the city jail at an early hour yesterday morning, and booked on a charge of drunkenness. He had been to a Finnish dance at the corner of Second and B streets, and subsequently engaged in several fights—one in the Red Front saloon and the others on the street. When taken to the jail his face was covered with blood from a scalp wound, and he complained of pain in the head. He had only been in the cell a few minutes when he discovered that his arm also was injured. It began to pain him terribly, and he was taken out to have it examined. It was then ascertained that both bones of the left arm were broken between the wrist and the elbow. Dr. Rand was called to set the fracture, which is considered a rather serious one.

A sawyer named Freer, in the employ of the Northern Pacific lumber mills, met with a painful accident several days ago by which he nearly lost two fingers of the right hand. He was working at the planer when some of the machinery gave way, and he was thrown over backwards. In attempting to break the fall his hand was caught in some cog-wheels and two fingers were badly mangled. Freer was taken to the Portland hospital to have his injuries attended. It is believed that the fingers, or at least a portion of them, can be saved.

James Stehman, a quarryman from Brock's camp, near Stella, is at the Portland hospital, with a severely injured foot. He had the misfortune to run a cant hook entirely through the left foot, causing a painful, though not necessarily dangerous wound. The flesh and cords of the foot were badly lacerated. He is doing well, and if blood poisoning does not set in the foot can be saved.

The condition of John Miller, who is also at this hospital, remains about the same. The physicians have decided to extract the bullet, and the operation will perhaps be performed to-day. As the bullet is in a dangerous place, hemorrhage is feared. The operation is considered a critical one, and will have to be performed with great care and delicacy.

MONEY FOR SEATTLE AND SPOKANE FALLS

The Big Fires There Were the Cause of the Withdrawal of $700,000 From Portland Banks.

The recent big fires at Seattle and Spokane Falls have been the cause of the withdrawal of large sums of money from the Portland banks. The banks of those towns keep their deposits in the Portland banks to a large extent. When the fires occurred the people of the burned cities drew on the local banks, and the local banks in turn withdrew their deposits from the Portland banks to fill the vacuum.

During the four days succeeding the Seattle fire, Portland sent $300,000 to Seattle. Within the next week or two $200,000 more followed. Portland has already sent $200,000 to Spokane Falls and it is expected that the calls of this week and next will take $100,000 to $200,000 more. So says a prominent banker.

CONCERNING THE CITY SEWERS.

Why the Water Front Is So Filthy—They Should Be Built Out Further.

Speaking yesterday to a reporter in regard to the filthy condition in many places along the river front, and of the noisome odors emanating from wharves, landings, etc., a city official said:

"One principal reason why the city front is so reeking and smells so loud is because of the sewers. You know that most of the sewers in the city have been flushed out, but the water in the river has been very low this season. There has been no June freshet. Consequently, the accumulated filth and foul matter have not been washed out. Sluicing the sewers is all well enough, but then that only washes out the conduits, and lodges the contents at the mouths. This year it has been piled up and has not been carried away by the usual flood. The time will come," he added, "and it is not far distant, when the sewers will have to be extended out some distance into the river. By running the sewers out into the stream, all the filthy drainage can be discharged and swept away. This will become imperatively necessary, as Portland grows and becomes a big city."

THE FISHING LAW EVADED.

Governor Pennoyer Will Prosecute Taffe for Catching Salmon.

He Is Mad at the Fish Commission for Standing by and Sanctioning the Violation of the Statutes.

Governor Pennoyer is on the warpath. He is after the fish commissioners this time.

Last Friday's OREGONIAN contained a special from Blalock stating that the O. R. & N. train going east that day carried thirty-nine boxes, each containing 150 pounds of salmon, shipped by J. H. Taffe from his fishery below Celilo for the Spokane sufferers.

Mr. Taffe sent a dispatch to Mayor Furth, of the stricken city, saying he would furnish the people all the salmon they could consume if Governor Pennoyer would give him permission to catch them. Then it was stated that Fish Commissioners Campbell and Reed had authorized Taffe to catch the fish; that they oversaw the catching and shipping of the fish, and would stand between Taffe and the governor if the latter attempted to make trouble.

Governor Pennoyer is going to give Commissioners Campbell and Reed a chance to fulfill the promise they made to Taffe. The governor says he will prosecute Taffe.

"According to the account published in THE OREGONIAN, Mr. Taffe has violated the fishing law, which provides that the close season for salmon shall begin on August 1st, and I will prosecute him," he said. "The fact that the fish caught were shipped to the Spokane Falls sufferers is no excuse for his violation of the law. If he wanted to help the sufferers why did he not contribute money. I am surprised at the conduct of Fish Commissioners Campbell and Reed. The idea that men who are paid to enforce the laws should stand by and sanction the violation of them, and then promise to stand between the governor and the offenders if he attempts to interfere."

Last year the governor caused the arrest of Taffe for fishing during the close season, but the jury failed to convict him. About a week ago he received a dispatch from a firm at The Dalles, stating that Taffe was fishing. Governor Pennoyer is determined to enforce the fishing laws if no one else does.

THE BALLOON ASCENSION.

The Bag Being New the Hot Air Escaped—A Free "Show" Next Sunday.

The balloon ascension at Clinton & McCoy's baseball grounds, East Portland, yesterday was a partial failure.

Work was not commenced on the balloon, which was constructed on the grounds where the ascent was made, until last Monday, and consequently everything had to be accomplished with a rush, and the hot air bag was not properly smoked. A hot air balloon is constructed in a far different manner from those using gas. The bag is not generally oiled, for the reason that it has to be as light as possible. To fill up the seams and miniature holes in the cloth the bag is subjected to a smoking process which, if continued long enough, answers the purpose of oil. This process was hurried through with in the case of the balloon that was to have gone up yesterday on account of the stress of time, and the hot air went through it like a sieve.

The attendance at the ascension yesterday was very large, but few entered the enclosure where the bag was being inflated. At 4:15 P. M. the ropes holding the balloon to the ground were cut, and away it went, with Professor Redmond hanging head downward from the trapeze. After ascending about 100 feet the balloon seemed to get tired, and rapidly fell to the earth, the aeronaut narrowly escaping being dashed on the barged wire fence surrounding the grounds.

Messrs. M. A. Hackett and G. H. Reed, who managed the ascension, on seeing that it would be impossible to send the balloon up, decided to smoke it all this week and give a free ascension next Sunday. Professor Redmond will make a private trial of the balloon a day or so before the ascension to guard against another failure.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY.

A handsome five room cottage, with basement, worth $2500. The nicest little home in Oregon. Built by days' work. We have refused $25 a month rent for this beautiful house, and have finally concluded that we will give it away to one of the purchasers of one of our large lots in the third Electric addition to East Portland. Twenty of the lots are 124 feet front by 145 feet deep, and sixty of them are 80 feet front by 227¼ feet deep. These lots are all being nicely cleared, the title to them is perfect, and the price is the lowest of any lots now on the market, only $300 each, $100 cash, balance in monthly installments of $10 each without interest. They are nearly as large as four full sized city lots.

The cottage is given away to one of the lot owners. As there are only eighty lots to be sold each purchaser has one chance in eighty of securing the cottage. The purchaser of each lot will be given a ticket for the drawing of the cottage, which will take place at the rooms of the Real Estate Exchange on Tuesday, October 1, 1889, the managers of the drawing to be selected by the lot owners. A warranty deed for the cottage and lot (50 by 112 feet), free of all incumbrances, will be made by the Portland Real Estate Company to the one drawing the lucky number.

This is no lottery scheme. The lots we offer are better worth the money we ask for them than any lots on the market. They are near the Waverly Woodstock Electric Motor line, the contract for which is signed, and which is to be completed about December 15 of this year. The fare on this road is to be 5 cents to and from the city of Portland. The cottage is now completed, and is subject to your examination. If you will call at our office we will take you to see the lots and the cottage.

Non-residents wishing to purchase any of these lots can send draft payable to our order for $100, and we will select a lot for them. As the lots are all level, and about 150 feet higher than the floor of the Morrison street bridge, there is but little choice except between corners and inside lots. Sale of lots will commence on Monday, September 2, 1889.

THE NEED OF A FIRE BOAT.

The Council Committee Will Confer With the East Portland and Albina People This Week.

The committee appointed by Mayor DeLashmutt at the last meeting of the council to confer with the East Portland and Albina authorities, have taken no action yet, but they expect to attend to the work assigned to them this week.

"What do you think of the fire boat proposition?" asked a reporter yesterday of Councilman Farrell, a member of the committee.

"The river front needs one," he said. "East Portland needs it worse than we. It has little or no protection from fire, while we have a good fire department, and are fairly well fixed. Once we have a fire boat on the river it will be ready to answer any alarm."

MURDERER PUCKET ESCAPES

No One Tried to Arrest Him and He Lit Out for the Mountains.

Catching's Brother Will Call on Governor Pennoyer To-Day and Urge Him to Offer a Reward for the Capture of the Fugitive.

C. H. Catching, carrier No. 15, of the post-office force, is the brother of J. S. Catching, who was killed by Lewis Pucket at Canyonville, Douglas county, last Thursday. As soon as he heard of the murder he left for Canyonville. He returned yesterday. While away he looked into the circumstances of the killing.

Pucket is a wealthy man, and runs a grist mill at Canyonville. Catching had a planer in the mill, and had a contract to plane lumber to be used in finishing the Odd Fellows' hall. About 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon Catching discovered that a bit in the planer had been set wrong, and accused Pucket with having tampered with the machine.

"I did not touch the bit," said Pucket.

"You are a liar," rejoined Catching, angrily."

Pucket picked up a long piece of iron set in a wooden handle. At one end of it there was an iron hook. Armed with this weapon, he attacked Catching and felled him with a blow on the side of the head. Catching attempted to rise, and Pucket raised the weapon.

"For God's sake don't strike him again!" cried an old man named J. Castro, who was a witness to the assault.

Pucket paid no attention to what Castro said, but brought the weapon down upon Catching's head, driving the sharp point of the hook into the brain.

Catching lay in a pool of blood for some time. Shortly after the fatal blow was given Pucket was seen in company with several men looking at Catching. Pucket also examined the unfortunate man's head to see how deep the cut was. Catching was taken to his home, where he died the next morning. He never spoke except to ask for water.

Catching was 49 years old. He left an invalid wife and six children. He was a quiet man, and was well liked in Douglas county, where he had lived for fourteen years. He and Pucket had been good friends. The people of the county denounce the killing as a cold blooded murder.

The authorities made no attempt to arrest Pucket, though he waited around for several hours after his murderous assault upon Catching. It is stated that Justice of the Peace Gibbs went to Pucket's mill, but for some reason failed to arrest the murderer. Pucket remarked that Catching was not the first man he had killed; that the last scrape cost him $14,000.

Pucket is supposed to be hiding in the mountains. When last seen he was going up Umpqua river toward them. He first went to H. Wollenberg & Bro.'s store at Canyonville and drew money. At Thomas's livery stable he got two horses and lit out.

The sheriff arrived at Canyonville from Roseburg Friday night. George Hughes, who followed Pucket for some distance, put the sheriff on the track of the fugitive. Pucket's nephew, Robert Pucket, is said to have aided him to escape. Mr. Catching said that when he left Canyonville fifteen men were waiting to arrest Pucket for aiding the flight of the murderer.

Mr. Catching will call on Governor Pennoyer to-day and urge him to offer a reward for the capture of his brother's murderer. The dead man's mother and sister live in Portland.

A STORE BURGLARIZED.

A Chehalis Jeweler's Place of Business Entered and Many Valuable Articles Stolen.

A correspondent writing to THE OREGONIAN from Chehalis, W. T., under date of yesterday, says:

The sheriff was notified last night that E. R. Butterworth's store at Centralia was entered at noon yesterday and robbed of jewelry to the value of between $700 and $1000. A young man who had been hanging around the store is suspected, and he was seen to pass through Chehalis about 2 P. M. yesterday. The sheriff has gone down the road to look for him. The opinion here, however, is that he is not the man.

FASTEST THRESHING IN THE WORLD

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 6, 1889.

Messrs. Russell & Co., Portland, Oregon—Gentlemen: Thinking you would like to hear from me and how I am getting along, I take this opportunity to write you that the 33-inch cylinder "Cyclone" separator is working fine—averaging 2200 bushels per day, and giving the best satisfaction everywhere. I have received good testimonials from all the farmers for whom I have threshed this season, and will send them to you as soon as the threshing season is over. I will have about fifteen more days to run yet. It seems as though everybody wants me to do their threshing, and I have had to turn away 1500 acres within the last day or two, it being impossible for me to finish my former contracts and so many new ones this season. The Cyclone has taken the cake in Linn county this season, and don't you forget it. Yours respectfully, D. D. HACKLEMAN.

If you will only try Hood's Sarsaparilla you will be convinced that it has "peculiar" merit.

THE MOST ARTISTIC PORTRAITS.

A REMARKABLE EXPOSÉ

The people of the Pacific Coast are interested in pure goods. They appreciate as well as any people on earth honorable dealing. When the manufacturer of an article which is to go into the stomach as food comes up before them in the newspapers, with advertisements of his wares, they demand that he shall be both truthful and honest in his representations. It goes without saying that the manufacturer who will willingly or fraudulently misrepresent as to endorsements which he may have received can lay no claim to the patronage of the people whom he has thus sought to deceive. "False in one, false in all," is the watchword in such a case. It may be a matter of interest to the housekeepers of the Pacific Coast to know that Price Baking Powder Co. have published, in their various advertisements throughout the country, statements representing that the National Board of Health, at Washington, had endorsed that brand of Baking Powder.

In order that the public may fully understand the extent and character of these misrepresentations; in order that they may understand to what depth a manufacturer can descend for the purpose of seeking favor or patronage at the hands of the public and prejudicing the public against other well-established brands, the following extract is given from a letter recently addressed to the Royal Baking Powder Company, of New York, by the Secretary of National Board of Health, which will serve to make plain the deception and speaks for itself.

EXTRACT FROM LETTER

NATIONAL BOARD OF HEALTH,
Washington, D. C., April 25, 1889.

"I have read the papers with astonishment at the unbounded assurance displayed by the Price Baking Powder Co., in attempting to use the National Board of Health for the purpose of giving credit to Dr. Price's cream baking powder. I am unwilling that this Board should be used for the purpose of misleading the public in the slightest degree. I have to say, therefore, that this Board never, in any manner, shape, or form, 'commended,' 'indorsed,' 'favorably reported on,' or declared that 'with the exception of Dr. Price's Baking Powder every sample was found to be more or less drugged or tainted,' and any statement that conveys such an impression, directly or indirectly, is wholly untrue.'

"W. P. DUNWOODY,
"Secretary National Board of Health."

In order that the public may still further have an insight as to how official examinations have resulted for Price's Baking Powder, the following extract from the official report of a government chemist appointed for the examination of articles of food in Canada by that Government, is subjoined: The official report uses the following language:

"Dr. Price's Baking Powder contains matter insoluble in water, 24 $\frac{18}{100}$ per cent. consisting of starch and tartrate of lime—a mixture adulterated 20 per cent."

In the examination of baking powders and official tests made by the Ohio State Food Commission, Price's Baking Powder was shown to contain 12.06 % residuum or inert matter.

Kohn had a queer specimen in his store recently. The man wanted a hat and his mind was divided between a fine felt hat and a straw hat. Finally the man decided on taking the straw, remarking that he thought it was more economical to buy the straw, because, after he was through wearing it, he could feed it to his cow. How is that for economy?
